SUPREME COURT CRITICISED BY COL. ROOSEVELT

In Address to Colorado Legislature He Cites Judicial Decisions Which Are, He Says, Subversive of American System of Popular Government—Ex-President Makes Five Speeches and Receives the Most Enthusiastic Ovation of His Present Journey at Denver.

DENVER, Aug 29.—Acts of the supreme court of the United States were sharply criticised by Theodore Roosevelt today in an address in the state capitol here before the Colorado legislature. The ex-President cited two decisions by the supreme court, which, he declared, were contrary to the principles of democracy, and he said emphatically that if these decisions indicated the attitude of the court the American system of popular government would be upset.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech before the legislature was one of five he delivered in Denver today. Everywhere he went he was greeted by cheering multitudes which blocked the streets, interfered with traffic, and packed to suffocation the various buildings in which he spoke. The auditorium, in which he delivered his speech on conservation holds 15,000 persons, and yet it was large enough to seat only a part of the throng which clamored for admission. The streets outside the building were crowded with other thousands, who sought in vain to gain admittance.

"I just feel as if I'd like to stay here for good," Mr. Roosevelt said, after he had made three of his five speeches. He added that he was taken utterly by surprise by the size of the crowds which turned out to greet him.

From the moment he arrived here until he went to bed, Colonel Roosevelt was kept on the move. In addition to his speech in the Auditorium, under the auspices of the National Livestock association, and his speech before the legislature he addressed the Spanish war veterans, who are holding their national reunion here; the livestock association at a banquet this evening and the Denver press club at a "chuck-wagon" luncheon at Overland park.

The chamber of the house of representatives, at the capitol, was filled with a crowd which cheered him so frequently that he had difficulty in proceeding with his speech. On the wall behind the colonel was a large picture of President Taft, draped with the colors. In addition to his remarks concerning the supreme court, Colonel Roosevelt denounced dishonest legislators and demagogues. He scored men of wealth who gain their riches at the expense of the poor.

Nowhere on his present journey has the ex-President received such enthusiastic greetings as in Denver.

[illegible] Colonel Roosevelt [illegible] As soon as [illegible] the special [illegible] from [illegible] Auditorium. That done, he hastened to the state capitol and after speaking there he was whisked back to the Auditorium to speak to his old comrades the Spanish war veterans.

Denver gave Colonel Roosevelt time enough to change his clothes before it required his presence at the final function of the day, the banquet of the Colorado Livestock association. The colonel talked to the stockmen after dinner and then went to his bed. "It was a mighty busy day," he said, "and a thoroughly enjoyable one."

The Roosevelt party leaves at 7:45 o'clock in the morning for Pueblo, where Mr. Roosevelt is to lay the cornerstone of the Young Men's Christian association building. From there he starts for Osawatomie, Kan., where he is due on Wednesday morning and where he is to make what probably will be the most important speech of his tour.

He Explains Insurgency—Roosevelt Tells How He Aroused New York When Police Commissioner.

DENVER, Aug 29.—In a few brief sentences Colonel Roosevelt outlined what he considers the attitude of New York city toward himself when he spoke at the banquet given by the Colorado Livestock association tonight.

One of the previous speakers had mentioned knowing him while he was police commissioner of New York, and in referring to that acquaintance Mr Roosevelt said:

"When I was made police commissioner of New York I was ushered into office with great acclaim. I said I was going to try and enforce the laws and New York said 'go ahead.' After 90 days New York waked up to the fact that it was being treated on a basis of morality it had never hoped to attain. New York never realized it could be as good as it was. New York was in ferment until the judges came to the rescue of the people. They decided that 17 beers and one pretzel made a meal and New York breathed freely again. Ever since

Col. Roosevelt Appeals to People of Colorado to Fight for Honesty in Business and Politics

DENVER, Aug 29.—Colonel Roosevelt was given a warm reception in more ways than one when he reached the Auditorium where he was scheduled to deliver an address on Conservation of Our Natural Resources. The great hall where the Democratic national convention [illegible] was [illegible] tained [illegible] whom [illegible] ident [illegible] great [illegible] him [illegible]

[illegible] of vigor which I am having to day. I have come back with my feeling of friendliness for the people increased. Yet I can say sincerely that with all our faults and with all our shortcomings and I know them well there is no other spot on the face of the earth where life is so supremely worth living [illegible] ance which the ave [illegible] has in good [illegible]

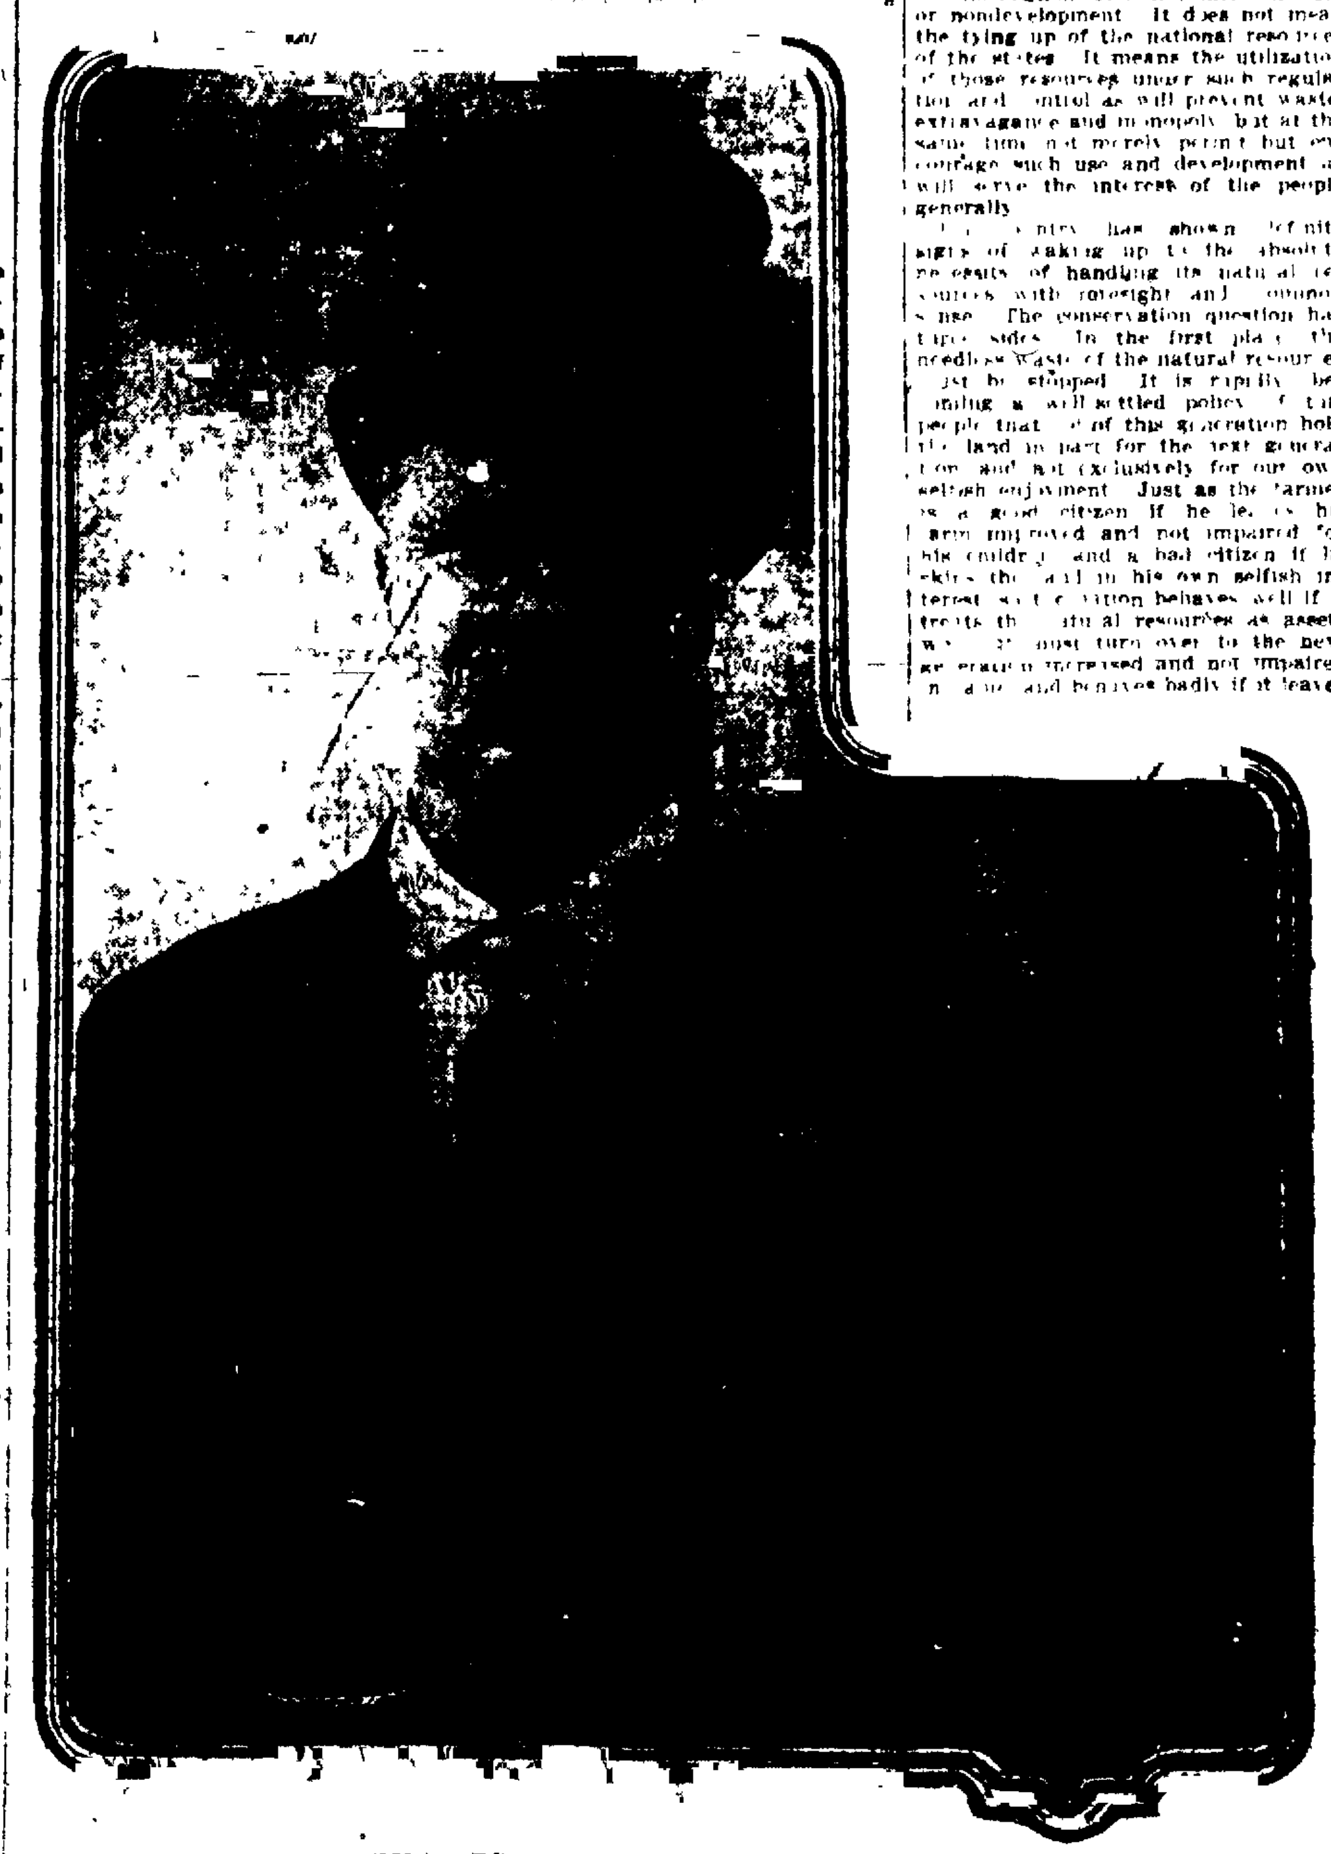

[illegible] pure purpose to fight for honesty in both business and politics not only for our own sakes and for the sakes of our children who ought to inherit the land but for the sakes of the people of the world, who watch the experiment which we are making in the republic of the west so that their hopes shall not be dimmed.

Speech on "Conservation."

Colonel Roosevelt's prepared address follows:

Conservation does not mean nonuse or nondevelopment. It does not mean the tying up of the national resources of the states. It means the utilization of those resources under such regulation and control as will prevent waste, extravagance and monopoly, but at the same time not merely permit but encourage such use and development as will serve the interests of the people generally.

The country has shown definite signs of waking up to the absolute necessity of handling its natural resources with foresight and common sense. The conservation question has three sides. In the first place the needless waste of the natural resources must be stopped. It is rapidly becoming a well settled policy of this people that we of this generation hold the land in part for the next generation and not exclusively for our own selfish enjoyment. Just as the farmer is a good citizen if he leaves his farm improved and not impaired for his children, and a bad citizen if he skins the soil in his own selfish interest, so the nation behaves well if it treats the natural resources as assets which it must turn over to the next generation increased and not impaired, and behaves badly if it leaves and cries of "Hello Teddy" greeting the colonel as he stepped forward.

At the conclusion of his set speech Colonel Roosevelt made the following extemporaneous remarks:

I have just come back from a very interesting trip in the old world. I spent a year in a comparative holiday in Africa and a quarter of a year in vigorous work in Europe during much of which it seemed the kind purpose of my hosts to give me exactly the same kind of experience from the full knowledge of the evils which exist not only with a determination to cut out these evils but with a full realization of our great advantages.

We should realize that we are not only the custodians of the prosperity of our children but in a sense of the whole world. Shame, triple shame be ours if we spoil the world's dream of the possibility of a popular government on a continental scale. I ask you men and women of Colorado to go back to your homes with the resothe land poorer to those who come after us.

In the second place the natural resources must be developed promptly, completely and in orderly fashion. It is not conservation to leave the natural resources undeveloped. Development is an indispensable part of the conservation plan. The forests, the mines, the water powers and the land itself, must all be put to use. Those who assert that conservation proposes to tie

INDORSED FOR THIRD TERM

Mayor Speer and Gov. Shafroth Enthusiastic for Former President.

DENVER, Aug. 29.—An unqualified indorsement of Theodore Roosevelt was given today by Governor Shafroth and Mayor Speer, both of whom are Democrats. This indorsement was given in the presence of thousands of men and women, assembled in the great Auditorium, which was the scene of the last Democratic national convention. The enthusiastic ovation given Mr. Roosevelt by the vast audience was far more marked than that received by him at any other place during his present journey through the west.

"The great majority of Republicans throughout the west, and many Democrats will not be silent until they see you at the helm of their great nation," declared Mayor Speer.

"You are loved because you are not controlled; you are independent and your honesty of purpose appeals to the heart. Your courage has made your opponents wonder what you will do next.

"You have work to do, wrongs to right. May your life be spared to accomplish the great work which the American people believe you are destined to perform."

Governor Shafroth was hardly less enthusiastic in his reference to the visitor.

Speaking of the three essential qualities—honesty, courage and perseverance—he said: "The courage of Lincoln, the endurance of Jackson and the perseverance of Grant embodied in Theodore Roosevelt."

These references to Colonel Roosevelt just before his presentation to the great audience assembled in the Auditorium called forth a demonstration which resembled that given a successful candidate on the occasion of a national convention.

Throughout his speech upon conservation Colonel Roosevelt was frequently interrupted by applause. No one stirred from the great Auditorium until his remarks had been concluded and as he took his seat the ovation accorded to him at his presentation was repeated.

SEIDEL REFUSES TO SERVE

Mayor of Milwaukee Declines to Honor Man Who Has Attacked Socialist Cause.

MILWAUKEE, Aug 29.—"In view of the unscholarly and unfair position that Mr Roosevelt has taken in the discussion of the movement for which I have spent all my spare time and energy, it is impossible for me to accept the intended honor."

This is a portion of a letter from Mayor Emil Seidel, socialist, to Frank Cannon, chairman of the Milwaukee Press club reception committee, in which the mayor declines to serve on the reception committee on the occasion of the visit of Colonel Roosevelt, who will be the guest of the club next week.

The mayor however states that the distinction extended by the committee is appreciated by him and concludes his letter as follows:

"However I wish to assure you that as chief executive of the city I extend to your guest the courtesy that every man is entitled to in a republic.

"Hoping that it will be possible for me to serve you and our city in other capacities in the future, I beg to remain yours truly,

"EMIL SEIDEL."

CONSERVATION LEADERS TO ARRIVE

Roosevelt, Pinchot and Garfield Due Here This Morning on Rio Grande.

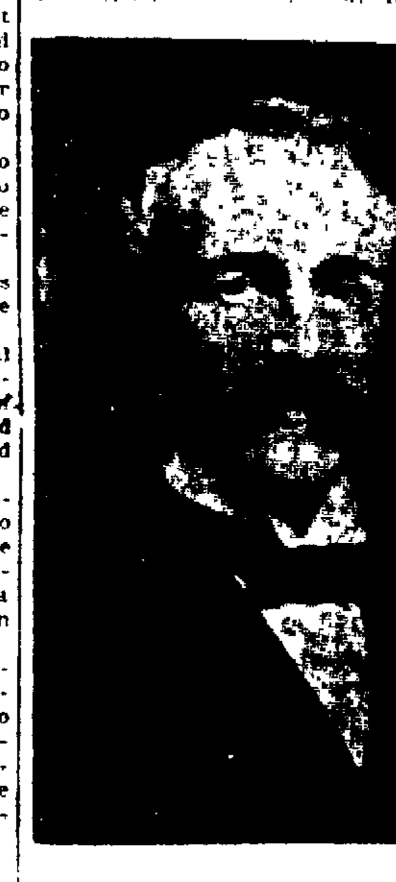

TEDDY WILL GIVE ADDRESS

Big Crowd Expected at Station at 10.25 o'Clock to Welcome Visitors.

For 10 minutes this morning, Colorado Springs will be the host of three great conservation leaders of the country—Theodore Roosevelt, Gifford Pinchot and James R Garfield. They will arrive in this city over the Denver & Rio Grande railroad in a special train at 10.25 o'clock and from the rear platform of his private car the former President will address the crowd.

There will be nothing formal about the reception of the distinguished visitors who will be accompanied to this city by C. P. Dodge who went to Denver several days ago. It is largely through these efforts that the people of the Pikes Peak region will be able to see and hear the most prominent citizen in the country for a longer time than was expected.

Upon their arrival [illegible] probable that President [illegible] of the Chamber of Commerce [illegible] Secretary A. W. Henderson [illegible] meet Mr. Roosevelt and extend to him the greetings of the citizens. There is no doubt that he will speak, for the desire of the citizens of this section to hear him was extended to him through Gifford Pinchot, who was asked to present the request by Mr. Dodge.

From the interest which has been manifested in the arrival of the distinguished visitors it is certain that there will be a record-breaking crowd at the station. Although the time will be all too short for the crowds to see the former Rough Rider he will not spare himself in the least during the short time he is here, for he has always shown himself ready to satisfy the interest of his fellow citizens. The Denver & Rio Grande officials have made every preparation to take care of the special train in which the three conservation leaders will travel, and the entire train is a model of comfort and convenience.

It is improbable that either Mr Pinchot, former chief of the United States forest service, or Mr Garfield, former secretary of the interior, will speak, mainly because the time of their stop here is so short and also because they are unwilling to take such a part in a trip on which they are Mr. Roosevelt's guests. They will probably step onto the platform how-

Arthur H. Murphy, representing the Sixteenth district in Congress, launched the vice president's boom in these words:

"I wish to introduce to you the vice president whom I regard as our next President."

Mr. Sherman will speak at Joplin tomorrow.

TRAINMEN OVERCOME BY GAS IN TUNNEL

ELLISTON, Mont., Aug 29.—Gas generated in the Mullan tunnel on the Northern Pacific by three locomotives today caused the death of Fireman Marshall and the partial suffocation of Conductor Newton and Engineer Sheppard. All were of the crew of an extra freight train.

The train broke in two in the middle of the tunnel, a bore a mile and a quarter long. While the men were repairing the damage they inhaled the gases from the regular engine and two helpers and were overcome.

Marshall died in a short time. Newton and Sheppard were taken to Missoula and will recover.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING CAUSES SMALL PANIC

DENVER, Aug 29.—Sheriff J. H. Williams of Delta county, while riding a horse in the Roosevelt parade today, accidentally was shot in the [illegible] leg. He was removed to St. Luke's hospital where the bullet was extracted. The wound is not serious.

The sheriff's escort was galloping at a fast gait when a gun of one of the other sheriffs fell on the ground. The cartridge exploded causing a small panic.

Hundreds of persons thought an attempt was being made to assassinate Mr. Roosevelt. Patrolmen drew their revolvers and ran to the middle of the street expecting to find some fanatic armed with a revolver. As soon as they saw Sheriff Williams tottering on his mount their fears [illegible]

Sensational Evidence Given at Illinois Central Graft Hearing

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Resumption of the hearing today of charges against Frank B. Harriman, Charles L. Ewing and John M. Taylor, former Illinois Central railroad officials accused of car repair frauds, developed sensational evidence.

Theophil Reuther, a former director of the Osterman Manufacturing company, one of the repair firms charged with grafting from the railroad, declared on the witness stand that he had been told that the late Ira G. Rawn held 1,000 shares of the Osterman company stock.

Reuther testified that Osterman said he gave Rawn the shares in consideration of an order for 18,000 car doors.

Rawn, as [illegible] found [illegible] to death at his summer home in Winnetka, Ill., several weeks ago had held a high official position with the Illinois Central railroad. It had been reported that he would be an important witness in the case. Previous to his death, when being questioned before a master in chancery Rawn declared that he held no interest in the repair firm.

Reuther related a story of an encounter with Osterman during which he declared Osterman threatened to [illegible] if he told of the transactions between the Illinois Central and [illegible] company. He said Osterman [illegible] him on the head with a paper weight injuring him badly when he said "It will all come out how the Illinois Central [illegible]" that time New York has felt an interest in me

Gifford Pinchot who preceded Colonel Roosevelt on the program, after treating of the relations between the forest service and the cattlemen, startled his audience by a reference to the insurgent movement

"The great movement that is sweeping the country—call it insurgency or what you will—is the idea that it is better worth while to help the small man make a living than to help the big man make a profit," he said

If I were making a political speech, I would ask the authors of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill if they had that idea in mind when they framed that measure"

The audience burst into wild cheers when State Senator Rodney Bardwell alluded to Mr Roosevelt as "the biggest and bulliest man in all the world bar none"

TALKS TO WAR COMRADES

Rough Rider Colonel Urges Them to Apply to Civil Life Lessons Learned in Trenches and Marches

DENVER Aug 29 All other business before the seventh annual convention of the United Spanish War veterans which opened in this city today was forgotten for the moment in the enthusiasm over the presence of former President Theodore Roosevelt who as the special guest of the convention for an hour or more this afternoon

The meeting ... formed this morning. The adjournment was taken until ... o'clock today to permit the delegates, seven thousand in number, to participate in the parade in honor of the distinguished visitor

Three Candidates in Field

Next to the reception to Colonel Roosevelt and his address perhaps the most absorbing interest is shown in the election of a new commander-in-chief. A new candidate has appeared since the arrival of delegates yesterday J W Marshal of Chicago is the man Previous to his announcement that he would contest for the honor Joseph R H Jacoby of Seattle Wash and Maurice Simmons of New York constituted the field and their support was divided entirely on geographical lines Jacoby commanding the support and influence of the western states and Simmons that of the east Election will occur Wednesday

Six cities are in the race for the next convention with St. Louis apparently leading The other five are Louisville Ky., Dallas Tex Saratoga Springs N Y Atlantic City, N J and Oklahoma City, Okla.

The proposition to drop the word "United" from the name of the organization is meeting considerable opposition, but an effort will be made to have the change made.

After a eulogy of the deeds of valor of the men of both north and south in what he called "the big war," Colonel Roosevelt greeted his comrades of what he called "our war"

I admit" he said "that our war was not very big but it was all there was. It was not our fault that there was not enough war to go round"

"We thought there was plenty for all in the Philippines," shouted a veteran of the First Colorado

"Well at moments it was a trifle warm in Cuba," Mr Roosevelt said. He added that while the fact that they had worn a United States uniform in the Spanish war was a thing to be proud of, their greatest commendation would come by adding credit to that uniform by their actions since they ceased to wear it He urged them to apply to civil life the lesson learned in the trenches in Cuba and the hikes in the Philippines of judging a man, not by his rank or position but by his worth as a man

As Colonel Roosevelt left the building the veterans cheered him and sang, For He's a Jolly Good Fellow.'

TELLS OF PIONEER DAYS

Ex-President Refers With Pride to His Experience on Cattle Ranges Thirty Years Ago.

DENVER, Aug. 29.—Speaking of changes that have taken place on cattle ranges since he first became acquainted with them, Colonel Roosevelt, at the chuck luncheon given by the Denver Press club, said

"Thirty years ago I came west of the Missouri in the Red River valley In those days the buffalo still abounded in great herds and there was still difficulty with the Indians The conditions of life were very hard, but they were more attractive than they are today. I hold it a peculiar pleasure and peculiar privilege to have taken part in your life in those days. The cattle bearing my brands, the maltese cross and the elkhorn, were first put on the little Missouri 28 years ago

"Now traveling through the country here, I am struck by the improvement in the comfort and in the opportunities for cleanliness and neatness which the ranges show as compared with the conditions of a quarter of a century ago.

"As far as I can see the men on the ranges today ride as hard and work as hard and are as thoroughly manly as the men of 25 years ago. The greater comforts they now enjoy contribute to their self-respect

"While it gives me great pleasure to think of the past I have even greater pride in the present and in the promise for the future of the great west"

CHEERED BY GREAT CROWDS

People Pack Sidewalks to Greet Ex-President and Witness Parade in His Honor.

DENVER, Aug. 29—The salute of a cannon welcomed Colonel Roosevelt to Denver as his special train drew in at the union station A great crowd had gathered at the station and set up a will ... as the ex-President appeared on the platform of his car He bowed his acknowledgements of the noisy welcome and stepped into a carriage to take part in the parade

Governor Shafroth Mayor Speer and M K Parsons president of the Colorado Livestock association, were in the carriage with him

The parade moved through the principal streets of Denver to the reviewing stand in Broadway near Seventeenth During the entire distance of the line of march two miles and a half the sidewalks were packed with a solid mass of people who pressed at the ropes which had been put up to keep them from the streets and were kept back only by the constant efforts of mounted policemen, cowboys and cavalrymen

Acclaimed by Multitude.

From the time the parade started until it ended there was an uninterrupted roar of welcoming shouts from the multitude. The cowboys gave their yell, whistles were tooted and bells were rung. Col Roosevelt was kept on his feet bowing to the right and to the left in acknowledgment to the salutations

The streets were a mass of colors. From the buildings flags and bunting were hung out and on ropes suspended across the streets banners were hung with pictures of Col. Roosevelt and the words "Welcome Teddy" and "Dee-lighted"

The parade starting at the Union station passed through the Welcome arch up Seventeenth to Lawrence street, to Sixteenth to California to Fourteenth, to Cleveland place, to Sixteenth street, to Glenarm, to Seventeenth to Champa, to Eighteenth and then returned into Broadway to the reviewing stand.

During the last mile of the parade the first two divisions dropped out of line and stood at attention as Col. Roosevelt who headed the third division, passed by. From the reviewing stand the colonel reviewed the remainder of the parade

Regular Troops Head Parade.

The first division consisted of United States troops from Fort Logan and the National Guard of Colorado. Then in the second division came the Spanish War veterans, who are holding their national encampment here, the Army of the Philippines and veterans of the foreign service.

In the third division Col. Roosevelt rode escorted by a division of the Roosevelt Rough Riders in their familiar uniforms of khaki and the Colorado Sheriffs' association Brig. Gen. John Chase adjutant general of Colorado, Major W. F Stone U. S: Major James H Willis, James R Garfield and Gifford Pinchot former chief forester.

Then came the automobile division at the end of the parade Cowboys in blue shirts blue scarfs and khaki trousers, galloped up and down the line giving their shrill yells

There were a dozen bands in the parade each playing a different tune and adding to the pandemonium of Denver's welcome to the former president.

Reviews the Procession.

Standing in the intense heat of the sun Col. Roosevelt reviewed the parade with the greatest interest

When a band approaching him played "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight the colonel beat time with both hands and nodding approvingly to the band leader

When the Tenth cavalry passed the colonel carefully noted the form in which the men were drawn up and greeted the commanding officer by tipping his hat.

The passage of the Rough Rider division was one of the most picturesque features of the entire parade. The colonel took his hat off and peered into the faces of the men occasionally recognizing men he had known in the Cuban campaign He made a marked effort to show attention to the National Indian war veterans and the Old Time Cowboys association.

Quickly taking off his hat when members of the Grand Army appeared Col. Roosevelt left the automobile from which he viewed the parade and going into the street shook hands with the veterans

When the last organization had passed by Col Roosevelt entered the Brown Palace hotel the big lobby of which resounded with the cheering in which a large number of women joined heartily He went to his room in preparation to his going to Overland park where a chuck lunch was served by the Denver Press club

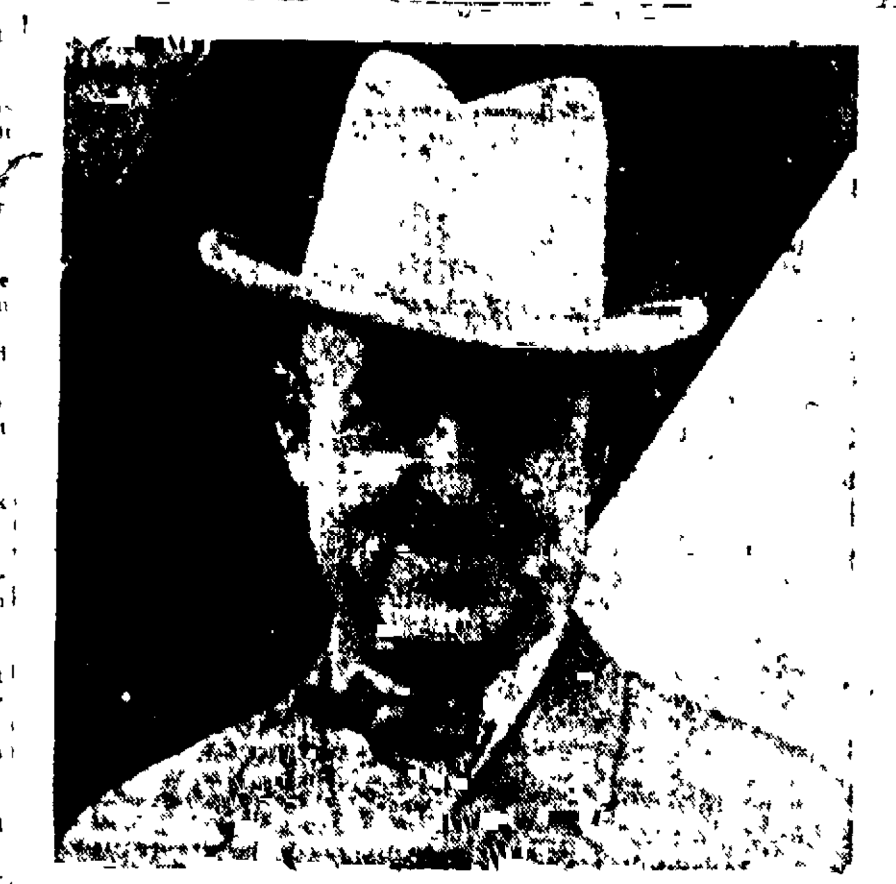

Chuck Wagon Feast

After a ... of rest ... room in the hotel Colonel Roosevelt proceeded to Overland park five miles from the city in an automobile He was escorted by the members of the Colorado Sheriffs association on horseback The sheriffs in their blue flannel shirts and sombreros presented a picturesque appearance

A crowd of several thousand persons had assembled ... Overland park, a picturesque wooded place to the south of the city In the middle of the park a corral was roped off and in the inclosure were the chuck wagons

The wagons had been brought in from the plains and were piled high with biscuits and raw steaks. Louis Callahan of Deer Trail cooked the steaks in kettles Callahan now a wealthy ranchman was once a cook ... Roosevelt ate ... and biscuits from a tin plate and said it was "just great"

Then he mounted the tail piece of ... the wagons and delivered his speech.

SHOWS INCREASE IN SANTA FE EARNINGS

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Attorney John H. Atwood of Kansas City, acting as counsel for the shippers cross-examined E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe railroad, at the interstate commerce commission hearing on proposed freight rate advances today

Attorney Atwood submitted voluminous statistics showing that the earnings of the Santa Fe road from freight and passenger traffic had increased from $78,000,000 in 1906 to $93,000,000 in 1907. Mr. Ripley admitted the correctness of the figures

Attorney Atwood endeavored to get Mr. Ripley to say that the railroads wished the increase in freight rates that they might share in the general prosperity of the country, but in this he was unsuccessful.

NEW YORK, Aug 29—One of the happiest men in New Jersey today is James J Gallagher who is in the Jersey City jail awaiting the action of the grand jury for his attempt to assassinate Mayor Gaynor

"My prayer is answered thank Heaven!" he exclaimed when told by Warden Sullivan that Mayor Gaynor had so far recovered as to be conveyed from St Mary's hospital in Hoboken, to his home on Long Island

"My prayers have been heard warden," continued Gallagher "I have prayed every night that the mayor would be spared to his family This is good news, warden—good news."

Then Gallagher resumed the study of his prayer book

WOMAN ACCUSED OF SMUGGLING JEWELS

NEW YORK Aug 29—Although charged specifically with smuggling into this country a pearl necklace, a gold purse and a lace mantle valued in all at $8,000 Mrs J Reynolds Adriance of Poughkeepsie N Y must explain where she bought other jewelry valued at more than $100,000 before she is out of the customs net here

According to a statement made at Collector Loeb's office this afternoon, jewels with a total value of $115,000 were found in the woman's possession and seized, while from her daughter Marion a $3,000 pearl necklace was confiscated and a third necklace was taken from Mrs. Mary H Doughty a traveling companion

These additional jewels do not figure in the smuggling charges against Mrs. Adriance who gave $7,000 bail today after waiving examination, but they are being held pending investigation and the production of bills of sale covering each piece The necklace taken from Miss Adriance, she says, was purchased in this country but lengthened abroad by the insertion of eight pearls The other jewelry Mrs Adriance says was bought in New York She was given until Thursday to substantiate her statements.

The necklace on Miss Adriance was found by women inspectors in a chamois bag tied around the young woman's waist It was discovered after the Baltic docked late yesterday, but the fact did not come out until today.

Bail for Mrs Adriance was given by her husband who gave as security his residence "Eden Court," at Poughkeepsie, which he said is worth not less than $50,000.

HEINZE SECURES MARRIAGE LICENSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Visitors to the marriage license bureau in the city hall today included Mrs. Bernice Golden Henderson, the actress, and F. Augustus Heinze the Montana copper man whose engagement was recently announced. The visit was an early one and the pair escaped general observation.

The ceremony will take place August 31. Mr Heinze said he was 40 years old and was born in Brooklyn. He gave his place of residence as Butte, Mont., and said he was a miner.

Mrs. Henderson said she was 26 and lived in this city. She said her parents were Thomas Golden, born in Ireland, and Mary Campbell. This will be her second marriage. She divorced her first husband, Charles A. Henderson, in April, 1909, and the court awarded her custody of their one child, a girl and $100 a month alimony.

RIOTING IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O. Aug 29.—Rioting broke out anew tonight in the street car strike and as a result, police, soldiers and deputy sheriffs rounded up 39 persons and sent them to jail.

OUR "POLICEWOMAN."

From the New York Sun.

A number of western cities are making a trial of the "woman policeman" for the park playgrounds. Los Angeles testifies that the plan has worked well in that town, and now Kansas City adds her "indorsement" of the experiment. The Journal of that town reports Miss Elinor K. Canny, the Kansas City officer, as saying.

"I want to be a 'policewoman' so I can have the authority to make these great big gawks of men who come hanging around our playground move on If anybody wants to know 'who's who' around that playground, just let them start something"

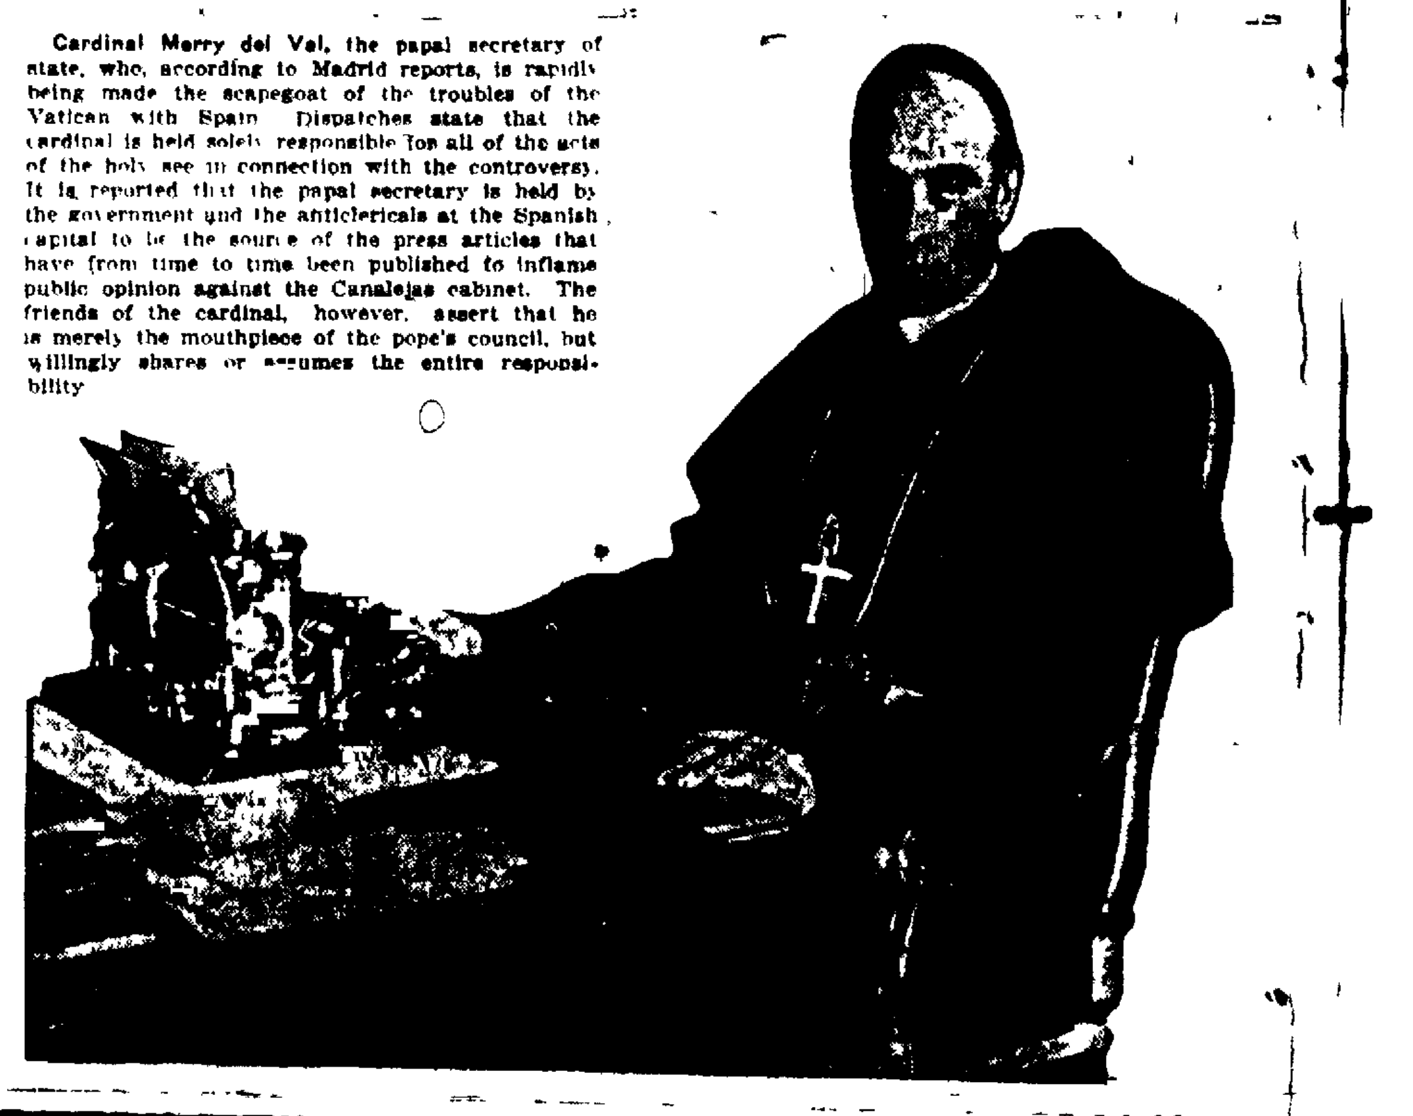

That a young woman of such forcibleness might have effective methods of discipline appears obvious Last season she introduced cold baths in an attempt to stop fighting among the smaller lads, but this proved effective only during the early spring days and became a popular punishment when dog days came. Thereupon the number of fights increased so fast that Miss Canny was forced to find another way. Once more the Journal

"Seconds, referees, etc., were selected and all who wanted to fight were given a chance. Miss Canny acted as master of ceremonies and made the perspiring lads keep at it until every ounce of aggressiveness had left their systems. Since that time not a single scrap has been pulled off on the playgrounds" them up, depriving this generation of their benefits in order to hand them on untouched to the next, miss the whole point of the conservation idea. Conservation does not mean depriving the men of today of their natural rights in the natural resources of the land. All it means is that we of this generation shall so use our rights as not to deprive those who come after us of their natural rights in their turn.

Actual Settlers Favored.

In the third place, so far as possible these resources must be kept for the whole people and handed over for exploitation to single individuals. We do not intend to discourage individual enterprise by unwisely diminishing the reward of that enterprise. On the contrary, we believe that the men of exceptional abilities should have exceptional rewards up to a point where the reward becomes disproportionate to the service, up to the point where the abilities are used to the detriment of the people as a whole. We are for the liberty of the individual up to and not beyond the point where it becomes inconsistent with the welfare of the community. Thus our consistent aim is to favor the actual settler—the man who takes as much of the public domain as he himself can cultivate, and there makes a permanent home for his children who come after him; but we are against the man, no matter what his ability, who tries to monopolize large masses of public land.

Now, to preserve the general welfare, to see to it that the rights of the public are protected, and the liberty of the individual secured and encouraged as long as consistent with his welfare and curbed when it becomes inconsistent therewith, it is necessary to invoke the aid of the government. There are points in which this governmental aid can best be rendered by the states, that is, where the exercise of states' rights helps to secure popular rights, and as to these I believe in states rights. But there are large classes of cases where only the authority of the national government will secure the rights of the people, and where this is the case I am a convinced and a thorough going believer in the rights of the national government. Big business, for instance, is no longer an affair of any one state; big business has become nationalized, and the only effective way of controlling and directing it, and preventing abuses in connection with it, is by having the people nationalize this control in order to prevent their being exploited by the individuals who have nationalized the business. All commerce on a scale sufficiently large to warrant any control over it by the government is nowadays interstate or foreign commerce; and until this fact is heartily acknowledged and acted upon by both courts and legislative bodies, national and state alike, the interest of the people will suffer.

National Protection Needed.

In the matter of conservation, I heartily approve of state action where under our form of government the state only, has the power to act. I cordially join with those who desire to see the state, within its own sphere, take the most advanced position in regard to the whole matter of conservation. I have taken exactly this attitude in my own state of New York. Where the state alone had power to act, I have done all I could to get it to act in the most advanced manner; and where the nation could act, I have done all I could to get national action in the same direction. Unfortunately, in the east we have in this matter paid the penalty of not having our forest land under national control; and the penalty has been severe. Most of the states although they are old states have not protected their forests, each failing to act by itself, because the action was really the common concern of all; and where action is the common concern of all, experience has shown that it can only be profitably undertaken by the national government.

As a result of the impossibility of getting such wise action by the several state governments in the east, we are doing our best to get national legislation under which the national government, at the expense of millions of dollars, shall undertake to do as regards the Appalachians and White mountains of the east what it is now doing in the Rocky mountains here out west. It would be both a calamity and an absurdity for the national government now to do in the west the very thing that a heavy pecuniary cost it is trying to undo in the east. By actual experience in the east we have found to our cost that the nation, and not the several states, can best guard the interests of the people in the matter of the forests and the waters, and that if it fails to attempt this duty at the outset it will later on have to pay heavily in order to be allowed to take up the work, which, because it is done so late, can not be so well done as if it had been begun earlier.

Control of Power Sites.

Take the question of the control of the water power sites. The enormous importance of water power sites to the future industrial development of this country has only been realized within a very few years. Unfortunately, the realization has come too late as regards many of the power sites; but many yet remain with which our hands are free to deal. We should make it our duty to see that hereafter the power sites are kept under the control of the general government, for the use of the people as a whole. The fee should remain with the people as a whole, while the use is leased on terms which shall secure an ample reward to the lessees, which shall encourage the development and use of the water power, but which shall not create a permanent monopoly or permit the development to be anti-social, to be in any respect hostile to the public good. The nation alone has the power to do this effectively, and it is for this reason that you will find these corporations which wish to gain improper advantage and to be freed from efficient control on the part of the public, doing all that they can to secure the substitution of state for national action.

There is something fairly comic in the appeal made by many of these men in favor of state control when you realize that the great corporations seeking the privileges of developing the water power in any given state are at least as apt to be owned outside the state as within it. In this country, nowadays, capital has a national and not a state use. The great corporations which are managed and largely owned in the older states are those which are most in evidence in developing and using the mines and water powers and forests of the new territories and the new states, from Alaska to Arizona. I have been genuinely amused during the past two months at having arguments presented to me on behalf of certain rich men from New York and Ohio, for instance, as to why Colorado and other Rocky Mountain states should manage their own power sites. Now these men may be good citizens according to their lights, but naturally enough their special interests obscure their sense of public need, and as their object is to escape an efficient control exercised in the interest of all the people of the country, they clamor to be put under the state instead of under the nation. If we are foolish enough to grant their requests, we shall have ourselves to blame when we wake up and find that we have permitted another privilege to intrench itself and another portion of what should be kept for the public good to be turned over to individuals for purposes of private enrichment. During the last session of congress bills were introduced to transfer the water power sites in the national forests and the public domain to the control of the states. I can not state too strongly my belief that these measures are unwise and that it would be disastrous to enact them into law. In substance their effect would be to free the great special interests from all effective control. The passage of such a bill would be a victory of the special interests over the general welfare, and a long backward step down the hill of progress we have of late been climbing.

Our people have for many years proceeded upon the assumption that the nation should control the public land. It is to this assumption of national outlook that we owe our wisest land legislation from the Homestead law to the Irrigation law. The wise use of our public domain has always been conditioned upon national action. The states can greatly help, but the nation must take the lead as regards the land, as regards the forests and waters; and perhaps peculiarly in the case of the waters, because almost all streams are really interstate streams.

Coal Lands Should Be Leased.

The same principle applies with peculiar force to the coal lands, and especially to the coal lands in Alaska, whose protection and ownership by the federal government is so necessary, both for full and free industrial development in the west, and for the needs of our fleet in the Pacific. The coal mines should be leased, not sold, and those who mine the coal should pay back a part of the profit to the people. It is the right and duty of the people to demand the most vigilant trusteeship on that part of that branch of the federal government in charge of the fuel resources of the United States.

Remember also that many of the men who protest loudly against effective national action would be the first to turn round and protest against state action if such in its turn became effective, and would then unhesitatingly invoke the law to show that the state had no constitutional power to act. Long experience has shown that it is by no means impossible, in cases of constitutional doubt, to get one set of judicial decisions which render it difficult for the nation to act, and another set which render it impossible for the state to act. In each case the privileged beneficiaries of the decision invoke the aid of those who treat the Constitution not as a healthy aid to growth, but as a fetish to prevent growth; and they assail the advocates of wise and cautious progress as being opponents of the Constitution. As I have said before, I am a strong believer in efficient national action, where such action offers the best hope of securing and protecting the interests of the whole people as against the interests of a few. But I am emphatically in favor of state action, where state action can best serve this purpose; and I am not less emphatically in favor of cordial and hearty co-operation between the nation and the states where their duties are identical or develop.

"If there is one thing which is more unwise than another, it is the creation by legislative, by executive, or by judicial action of a neutral ground in which neither the state nor the nation has power, and which can serve as a place of refuge for the lawless man, who can hire the best legal counsel to advise him how to keep his abiding place equally distant from the uncertain frontiers of both state and national power.

The Open Range.

I am here at the invitation of the Colorado Live Stock association, and I desire to express my appreciation of their steadfast stand for decency and progress in the handling of public lands and national forests. They have met and overcome the unrelenting opposition of the most influential stockmen of the state; they have won because they have been right. I want to express also my appreciation of the work of the American National Live Stock association. It has been one of the really important forces working toward effective railway regulation, while its support of the policy of federal range control has given it a large place in national affairs. As an old-time stockman I realize that the present order of things on the open range cannot continue, and that the sure way to protect the range itself, prevent the increase of big profits, promote the equitable use of the grazing lands, and foster genuine homestead settlement, is to extend over the open range a system of range control somewhat similar to that now in effect on the national forests.

Whatever system of range control may be adopted in detail, there are two things it must do. It must not handicap or exclude the small man by requiring him to spend more money for fences than he can afford and it must leave every acre that can be settled by bona fide homesteaders freely open to such settlement.

I do not believe that a single acre of our public lands should hereafter pass into private ownership except for the single purpose of homestead settlement, and I know that the stockmen stand with me in their desire to remove every obstacle from the path of the genuine homesteader, and to put every possible obstacle in the pathway of the man who tries to get public lands by misrepresentation or fraud. This is absolutely necessary on agricultural lands. It is at least equally necessary on the miner lands. It would be a calamity, whose baleful effect on the average citizen we can scarcely exaggerate, if the great stores of coal and other mineral fuels still owned by the people in Alaska and elsewhere should pass into the unregulated ownership of monopolistic corporations.

The Forest Service.

You progressive stockmen have stood heartily by the conservation movement, and with you have stood many others throughout the west, to whom large credit is due, such as the lumbermen in Washington and Oregon, the irrigators in California and the supporters of the country life movement in and around Spokane. I want to make my acknowledgements in particular to the Colorado Forestry association, which has supported the forest work by the government with has enemies because it is effective. Some of its best work has been met by the bitterest opposition. For example, it has done a real service by blocking the road against the grabbers of water power, and again by standing like a rock against the demands of bogus mining concerns to exploit the national forests. I have always done my best to help the genuine miner. I believe that one of the first duties of the government is to encourage honest mining on the public lands. But it is equally important to enforce the law firmly against that particularly dangerous class which makes its living off the public through fraudulent mining schemes.

Much of the opposition to the forest service, like much of the opposition to conservation, takes the form of direct misrepresentation. For example, the cry is often heard that the national [illegible] whatever agricultural land there may be in any national forest shall be open, under proper safeguards, to homestead settlement. And in the second place, when the opponents of conservation are asked to point out the great stretches of inclosed agricultural land on the ground and in the presence of experts, instead of in speeches in a hall, they fail.

The Reclamation Service.

The National Irrigation congress is to hold a session in the city of Pueblo late in September. I am keenly sorry that I could not have accepted the invitation to be present. I must, however, be in the east at that time. But since I cannot be present there to express my keen, long-held and deep-felt interest in the reclamation of arid lands by the federal government, I desire to do so now. There is no more effective instrument for the making of homes than the United States reclamation service, and no government bureau while I was President had reached a higher standard of efficiency, integrity, and devotion to the public welfare.

Like the forest service, the reclamation service has clashed with certain private interests, and has had to pay the penalty of its service to the public in the form of bitter opposition from those with whose profit it has interfered. The cry has been raised against it that the government must not do for its citizens at a less cost what private interests are ready to make them pay for at higher prices. Now, I believe fully in the private development of irrigation projects which the government cannot undertake. There is a large and legitimate field for such work. But the essential thing is to make homes on the lands not to enable individuals to profit from the necessities of the men who make those homes. There is no more warrant for objecting to the reclamation of arid lands by the government than there would be to protest against the government for patenting agricultural lands directly to the actual settler, instead of through a middleman, who could make a profit from the transaction. The men who assert their right to get something for themselves at the cost of the community instead of by service to the community we have always had with us, and doubtless we always shall. But there is no reason why we should yield to them. The reclamation service has not done so, and that is the chief reason for the attacks upon it.

I don't think that there is one among you who is a better and more thorough-going westerner than I am. There has been no support given to the conservation policies so welcome as that which came from the west, and none in the west more welcome than that which came from Colorado. There are men and organizations in Colorado, and I mention Delta in particular, whose support of the conservation policies has been of the greatest value to the nation. It has not always been an easy thing for them to stand for what was right, to stand for the real ultimate good as against the seeming temporary good; but they have stood for it steadily nevertheless.

From the standpoint of conservation the east has wasted much of its own superb endowment; and as an American, as a lover of the west, I hope that the west will profit by the east's bitter lesson, and will not repeat the mistakes of the east. The east has wasted its resources, it suffers from the effect of the waste, which now puts it at a disadvantage, compared to the west, and it is sorry. Most of the capital and very many of the men now attempting to monopolize your western resources are from the east. The west should learn the lesson of the east's mistakes, and it should remember that conservation in the west will help the west first and most, and that the movement for conservation is most earnest, most vigorous and most effective in the west and among western men. That is one strong reason why the conservation policy has come to stay.

EX-PRESIDENT MAKES

constructive stewardship can only call a highly technical legal subtlety, handed down a decision which rendered it exceedingly difficult for the nation effectively to control the use of masses of corporate capital in interstate business as the nation obviously was the sole power that could exercise this control (for it was quite beyond the power of any one state.) This was really a decision rendering it exceedingly difficult for the people to devise any method of controlling and regulating the business use of capital in interstate commerce. It was a decision nominally against national rights, but really against popular rights.

New York Bake Shop Case.

"The second case is the so-called New York bake shop case. In New York city, as in most large cities, the baking business is likely to be carried on under hygienic conditions which tell against the welfare of the workers, and therefore against the welfare of the general public. The New York legislature passed and the New York governor signed a bill remedying these improper conditions. New York state was the only body that could deal with them; the nation had no power whatever in the matter.

"Acting on information which to them seemed ample and sufficient, acting in the interest of the public and in accordance with the demand of the public, the only governmental authority having affirmative power in the matter, the governor and the legislature of New York took the action which they deemed necessary, after what inquiry and study was needed to satisfy them as to the conditions and as to the remedy.

"The governor and the legislature alone had the affirmative power to remedy the abuse. But the supreme court of the United States possessed and unfortunately exercised the negative power of not permitting the abuse to be remedied. By a five to four vote they declare the action of the state of New York unconstitutional because forsooth that men must not be deprived of their liberty to work under unhygienic conditions. They were of course themselves powerless to make the remotest attempt to provide a remedy for the wrong which undoubtedly existed, and their refusal to permit action by the state did not confer any power upon the nation to act.

"In effect, it reduced to impotence the only body which did have power, so that in this case the decision although nominally against state rights was really against popular rights, against the democratic principle of government by the people, under the forms of law.

Expects Reversal of Decisions.

whole system of popular government. I am, however, convinced both from the inconsistency of these decisions with the tenor of other decisions, and furthermore from the very fact that they are in such flagrant and direct contradiction to the spirit and needs of the times that sooner or later they will be explicitly or implicitly reversed. I mention them merely to illustrate the need of having a truly national system of government under which the people can deal effectively with all problems, meeting those that affect the people as a whole by affirmative federal action, and those that affect merely the people of one locality by affirmative state action. I am a most earnest and convinced believer in exercising the power of the nation where that power alone can be really effective, yet I am no less a convinced believer in seeing that the power of the states be made effective where it affords the best means of affirming popular rights.

"Above all, there should be no neutral ground where, owing to a conflicting series of decisions it shall appear that neither the state nor the nation has power, and where in consequence able and unscrupulous individuals are left free to riot at will without the possibility of checking or controlling them in the interest of public welfare."

Need of Present and Future

"Three or four gentlemen expressed the hope that I would speak to you about some of your own troubles. To relieve the obvious nervousness of the assembly, I wish to say I will not do it, the reason being that each of those who addressed me entertained views radically different from the others as to what I should say.

"I want now, as a man recently connected with the national government, to call attention to the great need that there should be more coherent work in the future than in the past between the state and national governments. We have what I think is, on the whole, with shortcoming and imperfections, the most satisfactory form of government that has yet been devised by man. But the construction of laws by the courts, and governmental action, legislative and executive, has not kept pace with the industrial development.

"Times have changed. You did not need to take care of the rights of the farm laborer in former times. If he did not like conditions he met, he would move on and take up a farm himself. Now the relations of employer and employe are slightly different than they were before. Unfortunately, the courts, instead of recognizing the new conditions, have lagged behind.

Demagogue Enemy of Progress.

"The worst enemy of wise conservation is that type of conservationist who tries to prevent wrongs from being remedied because the wrongs have existed for so long a time. And, on the other hand, the worst enemy of true progress is the demagogue or the visionary who, in the name of progress, leads the people to make some blunder which will result in reaction. Distrust the demagogue and the mere visionary just as you distrust the others who hide behind conservation.

"Be progressive; a great democracy has got to be progressive or it will soon cease to be either a democracy or great. But remember that, no matter what your enthusiasm may be, if you make rapid progress in the wrong direction you will merely have to undo it before you get along.

"If I were asked to name the three greatest dangers to American institutions I should name lawlessness, violence and mendacity. You cannot locate in your ranks the corrupt man. You think he will be honest to your class, and if you are indifferent whether he is honest toward other people, you can make up your mind absolutely that he will destroy you if he gets a chance. You cannot afford not to have a man honest all the way through.

"The man who can only see the corruption of a rich man is a pretty poor citizen. War against corruption and war against lawlessness and violence.

"I do not like a thief, but I like a liar just as little. The very fact that we need to have corruption unflinchingly exposed, the very fact that we need to have a man shown up, if he has acted improperly, emphasizes the wrong done by more than one person.

Despises Slanderers.

"Although I despise a crooked public servant, though I wish to see him punished with the utmost severity of the law, my scorn and contempt for him are no greater than for the man who by mendacity and through slander attacks the character of an honest man just as he attacks the character of a dishonest man. Such a one, if unchecked, would pull down the temple and bury us all in the ruins.

"I speak to the man who writes in the daily press (Applause.) I will go with you to the last point in condemning the man who, in the public press writes an untruth if you will go with me to the last point in demanding equal condemnation of the legislator who act crookedly. I speak of the men who write in the public press and the magazines. I speak of the politician on the stump. Judge men not by the class to which they belong, but by their conduct as individual citizens. The only man who I think is a little more useful than the wise and honest public official is the wise and honest man of the press, and the only man who I think is a little more contemptible than the dishonest public official is the untruthful and dishonest man of the public press.

"I ask you to stand by the official who is honest. I ask you to stand by the newspaper man and magazine writer who is truthful, and who exposes corruption. I ask you to stand against the official who is dishonest, and his equally base brother of the press who falsely assails an honest man of affairs."

CRIPPEN AND MISS LE NEVE ARRAIGNED

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Both Hawley H. Crippen, the American doctor, and Ethel Clare Le Neve, his typist, were accused of the murder of Belle Elmore, the former's wife, in the formal charge read to them in the Bow Street police court today. Miss Le Neve, was charged also with harboring and maintaining Crippen after the crime and while knowing that he committed it.

Before the proceedings, Inspector Dew, who brought the prisoners back to Canada, introduced evidence to show that Crippen contemplated suicide while at sea, following his flight from this country. Crippen was quoted also as declaring his companion knew nothing of the trouble in which he was involved and Miss Le Neve was said to have protested her innocence.

At the conclusion of today's proceedings the accused were remanded until September 6 without having pleaded or made any comment in reply to the charge against them.

DOLLIVER TAKES STUMP FOR WISCONSIN SENATOR

Warns Voters Defeat of LaFollette Would Be Calamity With Far-Reaching Consequences.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 29.—Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa began here tonight a series of speeches in Wisconsin in the interest of Senator LaFollette.

The Iowa senator said that the first among Republican leaders to comprehend the character of the irrepressible conflict within the party between public interest and the present-day organization of private business was Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin.

"It is proposed now to put an end to his career—to cancel his commission—to make an example of him," said Senator Dolliver, "so that the young men of the United States in the future may perceive how much more comfortable it is—how much safer—how much more profitable to serve the impudent financial interests that are trying to capture the strongholds of the government than it is to care for that scattered and unorganized constituency—the people of the United States.

"It may be that he can afford to go back to the quiet and repose of private life, but if the state of Wisconsin—yielding to the corrupt influences at this moment flowing in upon her from all directions—shall go back to the old form of government by political bosses owing their allegiance to foreign corporations, it would be a calamity almost inconceivable in its disaster to you and your children.

Speaking of 'standpatters' Senator Dolliver said there were two schools, the Aldrich school, which says "Hold fast all I give you" and the school of the apostle, who pointed out a plain road well suited to the program of society. "Prove all things and hold fast that which is good."

"The course of study is a short one in the latter school," he said, "which now numbers among its students a most distinguished pupil who already holds the diploma of other schools—the President of the United States."

H. H. ILAND'S ESTATE LEFT TO HIS SISTER.

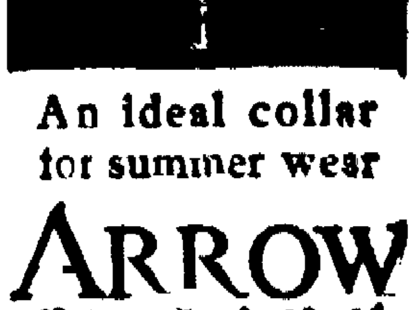

Special to The Gazette

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Aug. 29.—The last will and testament of the late Henry H. Iland, proprietor and owner of the National Hotel in this city, and owner of large real estate and mining interests in Cripple Creek, was filed for probate today. The entire estate, excepting $100 cash, is left to his sister, Mrs. Rose Johannigmann of Cincinnati, at whose residence he died. The $100 is willed to his other sister, Catherine Iland, known as Sister M. Marka, a nun in a convent at Lafayette, Indiana.

LLOYD C. GRISCOM, the chairman of the New York county Republican committee, who just now has become a central figure in political matters national. It was Griscom who tried to have the Republican state committee at its recent meeting name Colonel Roosevelt for temporary chairman of the Republican state convention when it meets at Saratoga next month. He was defeated, and since then there has been much talk as to the why and wherefore. A recent letter from President Taft to Mr. Griscom shows that the President himself would have liked Colonel Roosevelt to have been named, and if Colonel Roosevelt was defeated through any statements as to what the President desired, the statements were false.

S.S.S. REMOVES ALL HUMORS FROM THE BLOOD

The cause of all skin diseases can be traced to some humor in the blood. Healthy cuticles are only possible where the circulation is pure, and therefore the cure of any skin trouble can only come from a thorough cleansing of this vital fluid. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., cannot cure. True, such treatment relieves some of the itching and discomfort, helps to reduce inflammation, and aids in keeping the affected parts clean, but it does not reach the blood, where the real cause is located, and at best can only be palliating and soothing. S. S. S. cures skin diseases of every character and kind, because it purifies the blood. It goes into the circulation and removes the humors that are causing the trouble, builds up weak, acrid blood, and completely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Poison Oak, and every other variety of skin affection. When S. S. S. has driven the humors from the blood, and purified the acid-heated [illegible] is given to disease-tortured skins. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free to all who write. NO NATIONAL EAGLES HOME FOR PRESENT

J. E Dolan past president of the local aerie of Eagles, No 143, returned from the national convention of that order in St Louis last week, bringing news that a national home for Colorado Springs is an impossibility for the present Although the campaign for the home, which was waged in the convention last year, brought the matter to the attention of all the delegates, representing more than 350,000 members, the board of trustees this year advised that the matter be laid on the table.

The reasons for this action were twofold It was claimed that the proposition to make use of an insurance scheme within the order will take up the attention and money of the organization for some time to come, and although the insurance scheme will not be put into effect during this year, the financial and moral aid which might have been brought to bear for the erection of a home, will go toward this latter project, according to Mr. Dolan.

The second matter which stopped the erection of a home for the present was the fact that comparatively few members of the Eagles are afflicted with tuberculosis or with any disease. Unless there would be a call of necessity, therefore the trustees felt it better not to bring the home proposition to the attention of the main body of delegates.

Much attention of the former head of the Eagles, Frank E. Herring, has been given to weed out the undesirable members and that policy will be energetically continued by the grand worthy president, Thomas Grady of New York city who was elected this year

BANKS WILL OPPOSE PAYMENT INTEREST

From the tone of an interview yesterday with J Arthur Connell, president of the Colorado Title and Trust company, it is believed that city officials and the Colorado Springs Clearing House association will come to loggerheads over the proposed ordinance that local banks bid for the privilege of becoming depositories for city cash.

The ordinance is being drafted by City Attorney McKesson at the suggestion of Mayor Avery, who brought the matter before the commissioners three weeks ago It is proposed by the city to receive interest, if possible, on its daily cash balance in the bank, and it is probable that the new measure will be voted on at tomorrow's meeting of the City Council

Mr Connell says that if the city insists on receiving interest on its daily balance the local banking institutions may not be disposed to handle any more city bonds at 4 per cent, as at present and that the Clearing House association may refuse to grant any more favors It was also pointed out that if any bank in the city pays interest on the funds deposited by the city, it will have to withdraw from the association, a step that at this time is not considered probable At present city funds are deposited in three banks, none of which pays any interest on the account.

On to Pueblo.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party will leave here between 10 33 and 10 35 o'clock, en route for Pueblo, where Mr. Roosevelt will deliver a speech at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Pueblo Y M C A building After-wards, the party will proceed east, and will arrive at Osawatomie, Kan tomorrow morning There Roosevelt will deliver one of the most important speeches of his entire western trip

The visit of the three men here is of especial interest at this time Several years ago Mr Roosevelt then vice president, laid the cornerstone of the Colorado Springs Y M C A building He later passed through here on his way to a western hunting trip

Mr Pinchot, too has been the guest of prominent conservationists of Colorado Springs especially two years ago, when he spoke to a large and enthusiastic gathering at the Opera House At that time he successfully answered the arguments of those who were decrying the policies which he represented. His visit is of especial interest because of the great interest which he has taken in the Colorado Conservation commission which has taken the lead in maintaining those policies for the best interests of the generations to come

Mr Garfield at the first noonday luncheon of the local Chamber of Commerce several months ago spoke to a representative gathering of citizens of Colorado Springs and to quote the words of a prominent citizen at that time he explained the question of conservation in the most lucid conservative and convincing manner

Both Mr Pinchot and Mr Garfield have many friends in this city who will be glad of the opportunity to see them again even for so short a time

NO BUSINESS IS DONE BY GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Members Celebrate Visit of Former President by Refraining From Attempts to Legislate.

Special to The Gazette

DENVER, Aug. 29.—Colorado's general assembly proved itself to be as human as the remainder of the people in Denver today The presence of the "great Teddy" was so overshadowing a fact that neither branch tried to do any business. There were sessions of both houses.

In the senate, Senator Burger of Denver again took up his protest against the regularity of the proceedings in connection with the house initiative and referendum bill. He attacked the record in the journal, stating that it does not properly report proceedings when the report of the constitutional amendment committee was presented. Though he battled manfully for a couple of hours, he made no progress.

The senate will decide that all proceedings have been regular, and that the record in the journal is correct.

While the situation on the initiative bill has not changed as far as surface indications are found, there is a strong effort being made to hold Republican senators in line against it. Stephen of El Paso is considered hopeless, and will surely vote for the house bill, as now under consideration in the senate. The others are being importuned not to aid either faction of the Democratic party by voting for the bill

The house made no effort to transact any business at all. It was held "at ease" throughout the day, to be ready to receive Theodore Roosevelt when he appeared at the capitol in the afternoon.

BIG TREES ARE MENACED

Forest Fires Approaching Sequoia and Giant Parks Conditions Improved in Idaho and Montana.

PORTERVILLE, Cal., Aug. 29.—The Sequoia National park and the Giant forest in which are the largest and oldest trees in the world, are reported to be menaced by the forest fire now raging along Freeman's creek

The blaze has already extended over an area of five square miles and is rapidly making its way toward the California hot springs Much valuable timber has been destroyed and the efforts of rangers and citizens to check the flames are rendered ineffective by a high wind from the north

An urgent call for additional fire fighters has been sent to this place and Springfield

MISSOULA Mont. Aug 29.—While last night's rain was not as generally distributed throughout the fire zone in western Montana and northern Idaho as had been hoped it has helped the fire fighters in districts immediately surrounding Missoula, having completely extinguished several fires in the Missoula and Bitter Root forests

District Forester Greeley reports the situation vastly improved everywhere.

SEATTLE, Aug 29 —Conditions in the fire scourged forests of western Washington tonight are less encouraging than they have been at any time this season Yesterday's rain was insufficient to quench the flames serving only to give the fire fighters a breathing spell. Today when the rangers believed they had the situation in hand, the fire broke out with renewed fury

DEADWOOD, S D, Aug 29 —Two forest fires threatening proportions bounded on the south by the Black Hills national forest at Redfern and Fremont and fanned by a strong wind, are raging eastward through some of the best timber sections

Seven hundred soldiers and 200 foresters are on their way to fight the flames

A strange necklace, formed of 17 ancient Austrian gold pieces, and believed by the gypsies of the Pikes Peak region to have mystic powers was the only bit of jewelry that was left by the alleged highwaymen who are said to have stolen more than $1,400 in jewelry and money from the tent of Joe Adams near the Colorado Midland depot

According to Adams who says his wife heard the men muttering words in the gypsy dialect as they left the tent, the fact that the necklace was left is absolute proof that the men were Romanies, as only among the members of the race, is its supposed mystic power known

Although the police of Colorado Springs as well as the local police are working on the case, no other clew to the robbers has been found

DESERT AUTO, BUT FINALLY ARE ARRESTED

In an effort to escape arrest by the local police on a charge of speeding, two lads, who gave their names as John Smith and Thomas Jones, left their automobile in Williams canon and took to the hills Saturday night, only to be arrested Sunday morning as they were leaving the city.

The young men, it is said, passed through the town at a 25-mile-an-hour rate of speed, with a police official close behind Evidently unacquainted with the country, they took the road up Williams canon, which ends in a blind pocket below the Cave of the Winds There, hearing their pursuer close behind, they extinguished all the lights on their car and took to the mountains.

The officer was unable to find the auto in the dark However, unlike Rome, only one road leads to Manitou, and when the boys, exulting in their escape, drove through town Sunday afternoon, they were arrested by Officers Connell and Wolfe The lads gave bail in the sum of $25 to appear yesterday morning but forfeited their bond.

SCHOOL BOARD'S PLAN MEETS WITH APPROVAL

That the plan of the local school board to allow the children of tourists to attend the Manitou schools is one that meets the approval of those visiting here, is shown by the large number of inquiries made of Superintendent H A. MANY GO TO PUEBLO TODAY

ATTEND DEDICATION OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Colorado Springs Supporters Will Witness Ceremony. Roosevelt Speaks.

A number of the directors and members of the Colorado Springs Young Men's Christian association will go to Pueblo this morning to be present at the ceremony of laying the cornerstone for the new association building in that city, which will be presided over by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. The complete list of those who will attend could not be secured last night, as all of those who signified a willingness to go were not certain they can get away. Among those who are leaving, however, are: O. C. Berry and W. D. Thomas of the association, and probably Dr. W. W. Flora, president, T. P. Barber, one of the directors, went to Pueblo last night.

It was announced last night that, in order to reach Pueblo in time for the ceremony, the local Y. M. C. A. supporters will leave here this morning at about 6 o'clock, over the Santa Fe. All members and friends of the association who are going are requested to join this train if possible.

HENDERSON WILL ATTEND MEETING

A. W. Henderson, secretary of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce leaves today for Pueblo, where he will attend the meeting of secretaries of the various chambers of commerce throughout the state. The secretaries have been invited to occupy the stage with former President Roosevelt when he lays the cornerstone for the new Y. M. C. A. building in the Smelter city.

Following the morning program, they will get together and organize a social body, which will have for its principal object the closer acquaintanceship of the secretaries with each other. It is believed that by such an organization the many chambers of commerce in the cities throughout the state will be able to work more in harmony with each other, and thus do more good for Colorado. Some of those who will be at the meeting are: Thorndike Deland, Denver; J. H. Jenkins, Pueblo; B. E. Mahoney, Grand Junction; H. S. Maddox, Canon City, and Joseph Gilbert, Trinidad.

MIDLAND BAND MAY PLAY AT CONVENTION

That the Colorado Midland band will play at the sessions of the big state Republican convention September 20 now seems probable. The regular concert season of the band ends on September 11, but if the music committee can make arrangements, the band will be engaged for the full time that the convention is in session. Robert Kerr is chairman of the music committee.

CONFERENCE OPENS TODAY

Several Local Ministers at Annual State M. E. Meeting at Fort Morgan.

The opening session of the annual state conference of the Methodist church will be held today at Fort Morgan, and the following Colorado Springs ministers are in attendance, the Rev. O. L. Orton, pastor of Colorado City church; the Rev. Henry J. Grace, pastor Asbury M. E. church; the Rev. Robert Sanderson, pastor St. Paul's church; the Rev. Merle N. Smith, pastor First M. E. church and the Rev. R. A. Chase, district superintendent. The principal business of the conference will be the appointment of pastors for the churches of the state, and the naming of superintendents for the six districts of Colorado.

The Rev. Mr. Smith will give a practical discussion of the work of a minister this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, before a meeting of the Itinerant club, an organization composed of the younger clergymen of the Methodist church.

Of the local ministers attending the conference, one will not return to his church in this city. This is the Rev. Robert Sanderson of St. Paul's M. E. church, who, on his own request, will not be returned. Before coming to the local church about six months ago, he was a conference evangelist, and he intends again taking up this work.

DISGUISED BY BIG GOGGLES, STEALS AUTO

Wearing a pair of big automobile goggles which half covered his face and proved an effectual disguise, a man jumped into a Ford touring car that stood in front of the Blake garage on East Bijou street Sunday afternoon, and drove away.

The car belonged to Roy Rose, who owns the Rose ranch, a few miles east of Colorado Springs, and who brought it to town to have the engine examined. Through a peculiar incident, Mr. Rose did not learn of the theft until yesterday morning.

When he drove the car to town Sunday, he went to the garage and asked the representative in charge to look at the engine. The machine was tested and then Rose left, saying he would return later in the day. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon Rose went to the garage, but his car could not be found. Rose thought that his brother might have called for the car in his absence and paid little attention to its disappearance until yesterday morning, when he telephoned his brother, Charles, and learned that he had not seen the machine.

The police all over the state have been notified to be on the lookout for the Ford touring car, which is a model T and seats five passengers. The machine was purchased recently and had been driven about 3,500 miles. It is black in color, fitted with a top, but as it was an out-of-town car it carried no local license number.

The only clew as to the identity of the man who drove away in it is that furnished by an employe of the Kentucky livery. He says the man who took the car was of slight build but that his features were disguised by the goggles above mentioned.

BRANCH LINES AERIAL TRAM MAY BE BUILT

Until details with several mine owners in the Cripple Creek district can be arranged, the two companies which have signified their intention of bidding on the new tramway of the Golden Cycle Mining company will not send in their bids. The details concern the building of branch lines of the tramway to accommodate several different mines of the district. Agents of the companies concerned are now in the Cripple Creek district making arrangements.

The option on the property of the Golden Cycle company, held by an English syndicate, and which expires September 1, will probably not be extended, according to officials of the company. It is not known whether the option will be taken up by the prospective purchasers.

News has just been received in this city of a rich strike in the 1,635-foot level of the Golden Cycle mine several days ago. No details of the strike are known, but it is known to be of sufficient value to warrant the further development of the vein.

OILING TODAY IF WEATHER IS STILL CLEAR

First tests of the new process of oiling the streets to prevent dust will be made in Colorado Springs this morning.

The east side of Cascade avenue, beginning at Buena Ventura street and extending north for two blocks, has been selected by Commissioner Lawton for the first trial. Only half a dozen blocks, and on one side of the avenue, will be treated at this time and the other side of the thoroughfare will be rolled and put in good shape in order that a comparison may be made of the value of oil sprinkling to lay the dust.

The oil will be poured on after it has been heated to approximately 200 degrees. Hand sprinklers will be used in the tests during the next two or three days, and not until the scheme has been found successful will the city purchase a regular tank sprinkler for the purpose. In the event that the weather remains clear, the tests will begin about 9 o'clock this morning.

The oil was heated early this (Tuesday) morning by means of coils of steam pipes connecting with the plant of the Colorado Light Heat and Power company, and extending into the tank of about 6,000 gallons of oil sent here gratis for experimental purposes by the Standard Oil company.

Yesterday the stretch of roadway to be treated was raked and swept clear of dust, the experts in charge pointing out that the street should not only be perfectly dry, but also hard and free from dust in order to secure the best results from the oil treatment. Sand will be rolled over the oil, and teams will be kept off the street for a day or two until the preparation has time to become hard. John B. Hunter, the Denver expert, will not reach Colorado Springs until tomorrow to look after the tests, and today the expert on the ground will be Mr. Valentine.

"PERIOD FURNITURE" AN INTERESTING STUDY

Until recently, the furniture in most American houses was of no particular style, simply furniture more or less expensive—fashioned after the vagaries of the man that wanted to sell, or the ideas of the man that wanted to buy.

When things were at the worst and considerable of the furniture in the market was certainly atrocious, a manufacturer of refined taste introduced a copy of the Louis XIV style, which was recognized as worth while, and led to the Louis XV, Louis XVI and Empire styles, creating "Period Styles," followed by the styles of our forefathers, the "Colonial," and then by the introduction of examples of the great English masters, Chippendale, Sheraton, Heppelwhite and Adam. Later the "MISSION" (sugested by the furniture discovered in the old Spanish Missions in California), and recently the "Tudor" and "Flanders" styles, each representing a definite historical period, and reviving approved art styles.

GERMAN PEOPLE LUXURY LOVING

THEIR HABITS UNDERGO GREAT CHANGE.

No Longer Content with Simple Comforts Moral Tone of Cities Low.

XXVI—THE GROWTH OF LUXURY.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The forces that have operated to convert a Germany of two-score quarreling states into a united empire; that have built up a wonderful industrial machine in a land where agriculture and the handicrafts were so lately the only forces of production; that have hidden the provincial Prussian town of Berlin under the magnificence of this gay capital, also have worked a great change in the everyday habits of life among the German people. They are no longer content with simple comforts. They demand luxury and luxuriousness. It is, perhaps, not going too far to say that the leaders of the German people—the thinking men of the nation—fear the growth of luxuriousness more than they do any subversive school of political thought, whether it be ultra-socialistic or ultraconservative. The kaiser, who is the political captain, as well as the titular ruler of the empire, never fails to take advantage of every opportunity to impress upon his people the necessity of frugal thrift and the danger of extravagant prodigality.

Of course, the kaiser as the personal representative of God, does not believe that he should be limited in his desire to gratify his taste for pomp and pageantry. He thinks that the nation should support its monarch in a style as sumptuous as possible. But he deplores the fact that his people have forsaken the old ideals of simplicity and thrift. He has forgotten that his own great-grandfather, King of Prussia, used to go down to the market stalls on Christmas eve with the children of the royal family to buy gingerbread and sweetmeats for the prince Christmas tree. And like the kaiser, almost every German is willing to deplore the growth of luxurious tastes in all classes of the German people except his own.

Army Officers Economical.

The army, perhaps, is the only considerable section of the German social fabric which has not been affected by this great change in German habits. The pay of army officers is very small, and it has not been advanced to keep up with the steadily increasing cost of living, and therefore the officers must of necessity practice that strict economy deemed so necessary by its supreme commander. The Spartan simplicity of the great Von Moltke is held up for the emulation of all German soldiers. The great field marshal until the end of his days allowed but $75 a month for his housekeeping expenses, and if that sum was exhausted his guests went hungry. It is almost a classical proverb in Germany that "the battle winner was saving of candles."

Officers' messes a few years ago began to vie with each other in furnishing expensive food and drink for the delectation of the imperial palate whenever the kaiser was pleased to dine with them. This so displeased him that he issued a solemn cabinet order declaring that luxuriousness in army entertainments prepared for him would offend and not flatter. The result was a return to the rigid economy and almost parsimonious simplicity of the old days when Von Moltke was a live military commander and not a ghostly hero.

So alarming is the luxurious tendency that a year or two ago the imperial chancellor in the reichstag felt it necessary to issue a solemn warning to the nation against the sin of extravagance. Prince Von Buelow charged the people with having abandoned the "discipline of denial" and he warned them that that glorious national character which had made possible the great German successes of the Nineteenth century was built on the foundation of self-denial, and that it now was in great danger of being undermined and destroyed by indulgence. It was in this speech—in the debate on the bill to raise $125,000,000 additional taxes each year to satisfy the German appetite for battleships—that the chancellor said that everybody in Germany must retrench. A Socialist member, calling attention to the inordinate love of display which has characterized the rule of the present emperor, asked the chancellor, "Everybody?" But the chancellor was in earnest and he instantly responded: "Yes, I except nobody." The result was, not that the kaiser was forced to retrench but that the reichstag did refuse to grant him an additional $5,000,000 a year which he had asked, the better to maintain his fifty-four royal palaces, his ocean-going yacht, his elaborate special trains, and his great collection of high-power automobiles. The kaiser's preaching for once was acted upon.

Orgy of Extravagance.

But of course the chancellor's solemn warning, as well as those of the kaiser and the leading contemporary philosophers, accomplished nothing. Indeed, it was said that the retrenchment speech was followed by the greatest orgies ever known in the history of the new gay capital of Germany. Luxurious hotels and restaurants have taken the places of the simple cafes of a generation ago. The diners have forsaken their native beer and sandwiches for long French dinners and expensive French champagnes. This extravagance among the wealthier and well-to-do classes is reflected among the working people in a fashion which German publicists consider imminently dangerous.

In fact, the Germans now stand next to the Americans as prodigal spendthrifts. The growth of luxurious habits in Germany since the foundation of the empire has been just about the same as that in the United States in the same length of time. The Broadway life in New York in 1871 did not even faintly foreshadow the galeties of the Great White Way of 1910. There are Americans who preach against American extravagance, and sometimes even a great political leader or an eminent journalist will deplore the extravagances of a joy-riding generation in the United States. But as yet Americans have not taken the matter as seriously as have the Germans, probably for two reasons—first, that America is so much richer; and second, that Americans think of public questions as purely political issues and rarely or never consider economic problems.

The Germans are known all over the world as the greatest travelers, next to the Americans. They go abroad in first class cabins in luxurious steamers, they stay at the best hotels and in everything except tipping they are almost as reckless as the Yankee abroad. They will not, any more than Americans, imitate the thriftiness of the British traveler who does not scorn the second-class cabin of an ocean liner, and who always seeks a modest hotel ostensibly because of its modesty, but really because it is not expensive. A New York sporting man, who was born in Germany, returned from Monte Carlo last winter after staying only three days, saying that the place had been spoiled because there were so many Germans there.

Low Moral Tone in Cities.

In one respect the German luxuriousness is much more degenerating than American extravagance because the Germans are not held in leash by the puritanical conventions which still control American social life, the testimony of the divorce courts to the contrary notwithstanding. Berlin, Dresden, Munich and other German cities permit open vice to exist to a degree which would shock even the most ultraliberal American community into paralysis. Berlin especially has a low moral tone which has encouraged the spread of unspeakable vices to an extent unprecedented since the days of decadent Rome.

Aside from its sordid aspect, and the danger it threatens to the existence of the nation, the spread of luxurious tastes among the German people has its amusing features. Until the last few years the Germans have paid very little attention to fine dress. The old custom was for a bride to have a trousseau which would suffice for all her needs during her whole life, and leave enough over for her babies. Now the bride is not satisfied to appear in a gown more than once or twice, and she objects to wearing a dress in the second season as strenuously as any American young woman. The Berlin shops are as expensive as those of New York, and Berlin women apparently gauge their dress by how much it costs. German men, also, have lately become possessed of the desire to appear well groomed. Perhaps they will learn in time, but the average Berliner now seems to have the notion that he will be marked as a swell if he is the possessor of one "dress suit" of English cut. This he will wear at any time or in any place where he feels there is need for ceremonial attire, a reception to an army general in the forenoon being all the same to him as a dinner at 4 o'clock, or a dance beginning at midnight.

These habits of prodigal extravagance are most in evidence in Berlin, but then it must be remembered that Berlin is a microcosm of modern Germany, and that the Berliners are only leading the procession in which all their fellow Germans follow. The Berliners themselves are not alarmed; they are quite happy and contented and are ambitious to make their city the capital of the world's gayety and thus to complete the conquest of France, which they began 40 years ago. It is this tendency in the social life of the German people which is responsible more than any other one thing for the willingness of the people to permit their government to go on in the ruinous and reckless expenditure of money for a huge army and navy.

BUYS BLOODED BULL AT THE POOR FARM

Recognizing the standard maintained at the El Paso county poor farm in the raising of livestock, Murdith Bailey, a prominent ranchman of Fort Garland, Colo., yesterday purchased a registered bull from that institution, the negotiations being conducted through A. J. Savage, the local veterinary. The bull is a blooded shorthorn, named Portland, and is 14 months old. The price, it is understood, is approximately $300. The animal will be shipped to Mr. Bailey's ranch, in the San Luis valley, today, by Superintendent H. R. Mills of the county poor farm.

Superintendent Mills is also shipping to Rocky Ford today a number of pure-blood Duroc-Jersey hogs, to be entered at the Arkansas Valley fair. A high class of animals is being raised at the poor farm, and for this reason it is believed that the local exhibit will take a number of prizes at the fair.

Right behind Bowman came four others with scores of 99 out of a possible 100. They were Luke Lawton of Colorado Springs, Charles Plank of Denver, John Garrett of Colorado Springs, and Joseph Rohrer of Colorado Springs. Behind them came Tom Marshall, professional, with 98; Dick Clancy, professional, with 96; Fred King of Delta, 97; W. H. Hardy, 96; C. E. Searles, 95, and A. E. McKenzie, 95.

$40,000 OFFERED FOR COLORADO E.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Following the refusal of an offer of $75,000 for The Harvester, the champion trotting stallion (2:02), made today by William Bradley, New York horseman, to August Uihlein of Milwaukee, Mr. Bradley, it is charged, offered George Estabrooke of Denver $40,000 for Colorado E. (2:07¼), the champion 3-year-old stallion, later advancing his price to $50,000. The deal was left in abeyance.

YOUNG IS HIGH GUN IN PRACTICE SHOOT

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—C. A. Young of Springfield, O., was high man in the 10 practice events today, preliminary to the opening tomorrow of the three days grand Chicago handicap shooting tournament. Young's score was 97 out of a possible 100. Jay R. Graham of Ingleside, and W. D. Stannard of Chicago were tied for second place with 96 each.

DANNY MAHER TO QUIT THE RACING GAME

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Danny Maher, American jockey, who for the last 10 years has been riding in England and standing at the head of winning riders at the close of each season, has written friends in this country of his intention to retire at the close of the present season. Maher says he will never again ride on the flat, although he intimates that he may go in for cross-country riding following the example of Winnie O'Connor, who became a star at the jumping game after he became too heavy to ride on the flat.

From a bootblack stand in Hartford, Conn., to the possessor of $1,000,000 and the ownership of a fine estate in County Kildare, Ireland, near the birthplace of his parents, tells the story of Danny Maher's remarkable career. Maher is now about 34 years old, has saved his money, avoided trouble with the English racing stewards, the gentlemen who put Tod Sloan out of business, and is worth well over $1,000,000.

Pat Daily, who has started more good jockeys on the high road to success and fame, started Maher. Danny left the country when he began having trouble making weight required, and went to England where the weights are higher. He was a star from the start and despite his being an American, is popular and well liked. He says he will establish a breeding farm on his estate in Ireland. Stagg Sends Newest Ideas From Colorado

Coach A. A. Stagg has revived his football correspondence school, and the University of Chicago gridiron candidates will be real students for the next three weeks. The professor's first tabloid lesson was sent yesterday from Idaho Springs, Colo., and the Maroons will start the 1910 campaign by studying the advice it contained.

Captain Crawley will act as assistant professor until Coach Stagg returns September 15, prepared to start the practice season September 20 at Marshall field. Stagg sent orders to learn the new 1910 rules. He will forward hints on the rules and methods of mastering them from time to time.

Coach Stagg has informed his assistants that they may expect some training innovations this season proportionate to the changes in the rules. With even the time-honored tackling practice altered to suit the abandoning of the flying tackle, the rooters look for decided novelties in the way of practice stunts this year.

The Maroon coach is conning the new rules out here in Colorado and inventing 1910 plays to suit Chicago's shifty game under the changed conditions. The players think he will dispose of the preliminary work in short order this season and introduce heavy practice and scrimmages unusually.

Coach Stagg will have practically his entire available force of candidates on hand by September 20, but several may be out of the running as to eligibility. The Maroon roster to date includes only 25 candidates, which will place them somewhat at a disadvantage numerically.

THE BORNEO GIRL'S PRAYER.

It Is Breathed on the Eve of Administering Love Potion to Win Mate.

From the New York World.

Sarawak.—Like all pagans in every part of the world, as well as many not counted as heathen, the aborigines of Borneo, the Dyaks, have many superstitions. The most romantic of their beliefs regards the administering of a love charm. Here is the secret prayer a Dyak maiden breathes on the eve of seeking to win a lover by a cunningly compounded potion:

Sport Scribe Finally Admits That Athletics 'May' Cop the Pennant

By TIM MURNANE.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—As the leaders of the two big leagues break into the home stretch, with six weeks left for the American and seven for the National leagues, it looks like the Athletics and Chicago cubs. The only outside chance left is the pirate crew in the National. The Mackmen have already landed the honors and will have a fine chance to ease up on their pitchers after they leave for the last western trip. The Quakers have led the procession owing to a fine corps of box men and no club without two or three air-tight pitchers can hope to win unless they have a phenomenal ball club outside of the box.

The wisdom of closing the season the first week in October is now apparent to all, for the interest will be taken out of the post-season series this fall if the Athletics are forced to rest up a week before the Chicago men have finished their regular season.

For some reason the Athletics and Cubs are not general favorites any more with the baseball public. These were named to electrify the baseball public two or three seasons ago, but the edge has been taken off the enthusiasm for these two clever clubs, and any other contestants would have pleased the public much better than the ones now in shape to carry off the honors and the big money that goes with the series.

The fact that three clubs who have taken part in world's series come back for more glory with almost the same men that have carried off the honors in the past must make it plain to all how hard it is to develop a great ball team.

Practically two-thirds of the players now doing the effective work for the great clubs of Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Chicago were members of the teams who took part in the games for the highest honors and were [illegible] on the rake off. Looking back at the men who were on the firing line when the Quaker club played [illegible] honors, we find [illegible] Murphy, Topsy Hartsel, [illegible] Lord, Bender, Plank, [illegible] together with the leader Connie Mack, the team using the same old methods and working as they have since reaching the Quaker city.

The Cubs have the same old guard and a gamer bunch never scuttled a ship with Frank Chance keeping every one good natured. There are Kling, Evers, Tinker, Steinfeldt, Sheckard, Schulte and practically the same pitching corps with a couple of clever new ones. Then look at the Pirate crew with Fred Clarke smoother than a trout stream, Wagner, Leach and an old bunch of pitchers. The Pirates picked up a couple of good ones in Campbell and Flynn. Any of these teams would have little show for the money lacking the rich experience of the past.

Hogan Looks for Battle Between Champion Ad Wolgast and Welsh

By MALACHY HOGAN.

DENVER, Aug. 29.—Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion, is another who is likely to answer the call to the other side, for the Michigan wildcat seems to have a number of offers which look good. Even McIntosh is after him, but there will probably be nothing doing on this as the Australian would most likely want him to meet McFarland in a championship battle and the two can't see each other on account of the weight question.

Of course the Chicago lad is exceedingly anxious for a swipe at the title which he has sought for some time, but he stands little or no chance unless he changes his adopted tactics views on the legitimate lightweight. It is simply a case of Packy being somewhat afraid of going against Wolgast when compelled to make 133 pounds ringside or even a couple of hours before.

The offer of the Cardiff Wales club to Wolgast for a title go with Freddie Welsh must look good to the champion, for it will [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] this the champion [illegible] the [illegible] moving pictures which would [illegible] his purse up to a big sum. This amount is assured Wolgast whether he win, lose or draw, while Welsh would have to be content with the [illegible] of $6,000.

A Wolgast-Welsh [illegible] will be the next big affair in the pugilistic line for this pair is due to try out their abilities as McFarland is out of the question [illegible] at present. It wouldn't be at all surprising if Wolgast [illegible] accepts the offer of the Wales club and hikes across the water for a short term. The champion has been longing for just such a trip for some time and the opportunity is now at hand so all he has to do is to accept.

Meanwhile he [illegible] himself with Frankie White [illegible] had a battle to be staged at Fond du Lac, Wis., during the third week of September. The White person has been after Wolgast for a long time with the idea that he can beat him and now he will have his chance to make good. Wolgast is a bad man, however, in either a long or short bout and being in excellent shape at present he is liable to blast White's hopes in short order. The champion is strong for this idea of meeting second-raters every week for it nets him quite a sum and at the same time he can remain in the vicinity of his home.

COLORADO WILL STAND FIRM

THE principles for which Theodore Roosevelt stands are the principles for which Colorado stands, and during the few minutes he will be here this forenoon the people of the Pikes Peak region will have an opportunity to show him that they are in accord, heart and soul, with the policies that are so intimately associated with his name.

The visit of the former President, who will be accompanied by Gifford Pinchot, former Chief Forester, and James R. Garfield, former Secretary of the Interior, the two men who, with him, form the great triumvirate of the square deal—can not fail to give impetus to the already powerful movement in this state for political reform, for honest citizenship and honest public service, for government in the interest of the common people as against government for the benefit of a privileged few.

Rooseveltism and Progressive Republicanism are essentially one and the same thing, and if the people of Colorado, regardless of political affiliations, believe in the things for which Theodore Roosevelt stands, as they do, they believe in the principles of Progressive Republicanism. And those are principles that are as irresistible as the tides of the ocean. It may not be this year, it may not be two years from now, but sooner or later Colorado will throw off the shackles of corporate greed and political corruption.

The Gazette takes especial pride in welcoming Theodore Roosevelt to Colorado Springs, because it has been strong and consistent in its support of his battle in behalf of the people, in its defense of the Roosevelt system of national conservation against demagogic and unjust attack, in its demand for progressive legislation and in its leadership in Colorado of the fight for honest politics and genuine popular government.

As President Mr. Roosevelt awakened the national conscience to a sense of wrong. Out of that awakening has grown a demand echoing from ocean to ocean and from lakes to gulf, that the rights of the people shall prevail. Colorado has heard the call and will stand firm in its fight for the principles that make for progress.

THEIR DUTY IS PLAIN.

THE duty of the legislators now in session at Denver is plain. The people of Colorado, without regard to party, want certain measures enacted into law. They are particularly interested in the Initiative and Referendum and the Direct Primary. And it is the duty of every Assemblyman and Senator without regard to party, to give his unqualified support to bona fide measures that will meet this demand.

The struggle for popular rights is essentially a popular issue. It is a party issue only insofar as one party take a stand squarely on one side of this question and another on the other. In Colorado, at the present time, there is no partisan line of demarkation. Certain interests in the Democratic party are, for obvious reasons, unalterably opposed to the Initiative and Referendum and the Direct Primary as well as all other reform measures that similarly aim to vest larger political power in the people. Certain interests in the Republican party are on the same side of the fence and for the same obvious reasons.

These interests dominate the two parties in Colorado and the legislator, Republican or Democrat, who obstructs or fails to support the reform laws for enactment of which the special session was called is recreant in his duty to the people.

The Democratic senators who have stood out for the redemption of the platform pledges may be mainly animated either by a sincere desire to keep faith with the people or by the hope of gaining a fancied partisan advantage. But what their motive is does not matter. The point is that in advocating laws that the people want they are serving the people. The obligation rests equally upon the Republican Senators. The plea that these are Democratic measures and the support of them is equivalent to aiding the enemy is weak and specious. It is so weak and specious that every Republican who opposes real reform measures and urges such a reason in defense lays himself open to the charge that he is secretly allied with the interests that are attempting to thwart the popular will.

In point of fact, Republican support of the reform laws asked by Governor Shafroth upon the special session means added strength to the Republican party in the coming campaign, for service to the people is service to the party. Let it be granted however that the present situation constitutes an exception to that rule. It may then be pertinent [illegible] service is the prime [illegible] that party service [illegible] consideration.

This is an idea that has as yet true enough not stamped itself indelibly upon American politics but it is daily [illegible] and the wise politician is he who takes [illegible] which [illegible] the legislator [illegible] effectively and individually, to its fate, regretfully thoughtful of the fact that few of the people's chosen representatives are not politicians and that few politicians are really wise.

EL PASO SHOULD EXHIBIT

THE exposition to be held in Spokane October 3 to 8 during the session of the Dry Farming Congress and the week of the Interstate Fair offers a fine opportunity to El Paso County to exhibit its advantages as a dry farming section. Countless thousands will visit this exposition and it is needless to say that such a display of farm products grown on semiarid land, as this county is capable of making, would be a valuable advertisement and give stimulus to the settlement and development of this region.

The farmers of the county should not neglect this chance and if individual exhibits can not be sent, a general display of El Paso County products should be arranged for. A request to the superintendent of exhibits of the Dry Farming Congress at Spokane will bring a premium list and information as to preparing and shipping exhibits. The premiums of the exposition and fair total $10,000 and exhibitors may compete for prizes at both.

It is particularly desirable that this county make a strong showing in view of the campaign of Colorado Springs for the next Dry Farming Congress. The lack of a good exhibit might raise among the delegates at Spokane serious question as to the merit of this city's claim to recognition.

Postmaster General Hitchcock's hunting trip in Arizona and New Mexico may be for the purpose of capturing four new Senators for the Administration's preserve.

Vice President James Schoolcraft Sherman has had nothing to say since the President's letter relative to the New York fight was made public. What is there for Jeems to say?

THE SCOPE OF THE SQUARE DEAL.

From the Kansas City Times.

I want to assure you that as long as I have the power to do so, I am going to fight for a clean government. I am going to fight for clean manhood. I am going to fight for clean politics.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Never for a moment has Mr Roosevelt lost sight of clean manhood as the essential of clean politics and clean government. If he stopped with individual character building he would accomplish still a great service. But, up to that point, he might have the applause of many of the big and little grafters of the country. It is because, on the foundation of clean manhood, he insists upon the building of clean politics and clean government, that he is "viewed with alarm" by the men who, in one way or another, get what is not theirs.

The really coarse thieves and the machine politicians of "coarse work" either sneer at, or resent in their hearts his fight for individual integrity. But many a smug citizen will sach, "That's right, be honest!"—and then feel the dash of cold water when Roosevelt says, as at Buffalo, "We have got to that stage when we must consider the interests of all."

One will find that in all the former President's speeches he hitches up individual character with 'the interests of all.' Dependence on a system to make things run right automatically is as nonsensical to him as to confine rules of character to such conditions as prevail in the wilderness and not more nonsensical.

Clean politics, clean government and clean manhood, and the greatest of these is clean manhood. That is the trinity of the square deal.

AFTER THE DREADNOUGHT?

From the Evening Wisconsin.

A feeling very much like that of the ancients after the elephant had been utilized in the line of battle seems to have come upon the British admiralty. Their elephant is the dreadnought, an engine of war immense in its potentialities of destructiveness when all the conditions favor its use, but embarrassing by reason of its unwieldiness and exposed to danger from the assaults of an enemy equipped for rapid evolutions. The submarine below and aeroplane above, both equipped with dynamite bombs, suggest nightmare dreams of the dreadnought.

Therefore a reaction impends in naval architecture. It is reported that the British admiralty has decided to lay down, presumably at Portsmouth, a motor-driven battleship with internal combustion gas engines consequently without smokestacks.

Such a vessel with its enormous advantages and great economy of space as well as comparative lightness would, it is argued, make the existing dreadnought battleships obsolete. Certainly it would embody qualities absent in the dreadnought but indispensable in offensive and defensive warfare on the sea.

The report of the British admiralty's intention to construct a motor battleship is unconfirmed. Such an experiment would necessitate an outlay of $10,000,000, and might not turn out successful, a London correspondent says.

"A prominent member of one of the most noted firms of marine motor engineers stated that he had heard unofficially that the admiralty had offered a 10,000-horsepower internal combustion engine, but he was entirely unaware of the reported intention of the admiralty to construct a motor driven battleship. He dwelt on the extreme difficulty of satisfactorily constructing these engines and declared that recent attempts on the continent to manufacture a 10-cylinder engine of 1,000 horsepower per cylinder had been unattended with any real success.

The fact that Britain's immense outlay for dreadnoughts has not brought peace of mind to the admiralty and that a new type of naval vessel is under consideration, is significant. Why will civilized nations pitch so many hard earned millions of their people's money into the sea.

PUBLICITY AND DISEASE

From the Washington Star.

While it is possibly true that the public may be unduly alarmed by the publicity given to reports of epidemic disease it is undeniable that immeasurable good results from the widespread discussion of disease conditions and the education of the people through the newspapers in the principles of sanitary living. The physicians of Washington at their meeting held last night virtually condemned the publication of news regarding the prevalence of infantile paralysis in this district, a disease of which but little is known and regarding which the physicians themselves are in wide disagreement. It may be true as was stated in the resolutions adopted by the meeting that infantile paralysis claims fewer victims annually than other diseases of childhood, and still the indictment does not lie against publicity in this case.

Here is virtually a new condition, a condition which [illegible] the scientists themselves and which [illegible] would be perhaps [illegible] doctrine of medical science to keep the public in ignorance just as it was the practice of medical men of a past generation [illegible] today to [illegible] than the patient [illegible] that knowledge is wholesome and that he cumulative force of intelligent public fear is helpful in the solution of such problems.

The newspapers of Washington that have been printing daily reports of the spread of infantile paralysis in the district have been animated solely by the desire to assist in the ascertainment of the cause and the means of cure of this disease. It is not to be believed that the alarm created by the constant disclosure of new cases has done the slightest harm. On the contrary probably hundreds of homes in this city are today cleaner and more sanitary than before in consequence of this public discussion and whether infantile paralysis is in any degree caused by insanitary living, nevertheless the public health has gained as a result of the direction of the people's thoughts into channels of better living and cleaner surroundings.

Of course publicity of this character in such a case does not necessarily in itself forward the strictly scientific researches from which it is to be hoped some specific ascertainment of cause or discovery of cure will result, but it is far better to proceed with as perfect an understanding as possible on the part of the public of what is being sought than to surround the matter with a profound mystery and deal with the community as with a child without reasoning powers or discretion or the capacity for self-control. Publicity has done wonders in the fight against tuberculosis and none is so willing to admit this fact as the medical practitioner. It has gained headway toward the prevention of typhoid fever. It is indeed to be regarded as one of the most powerful of modern therapeutic agencies.

Ah yes my friend, it's might hot. No man whose head is right could doubt it. The sun is on his job, I wot, but 'twill not help to talk about it. Men chase along and fume and sweat, and roast the climate, all together, they might be cool if they'd forget to think and talk about the weather. Some fellow stops me in the shade, and of the sizzling sun he preaches, and all the time my thoughts have strayed to Eskimos and Arctic reaches. I'm thinking of the ice up there, of snowy trails and tired explorers, who eat a slice of polar bear, and wash it down with hair restorers. I'm thinking of the sledge and raft, of storms with which brave men have reckoned. I'm thinking of the gumdrop graft, and heat can't bother me a second. Most human ills contrary are, and if we coddle 'em and pet 'em, they'll stick like forty kinds of tar, but fade away when we forget 'em.

THE HOT DAY

WALT MASON

The Daily Chit-Chat

"My doctor's younger daughter—they say in our town—married beneath her. 'Such a blow to her mother's pride,'" they add, how could Jane have done it?

How beneath her?—you may wonder. Because he can't support her? Because he is of an objectionable family? Because he is a man without intelligence or intellectuality?

Not any of these things. He makes a good salary for a man of his age, and will undoubtedly make much more as time goes on. His family is of sturdy American stock, and he has as fine and clear an intelligence as it is often my pleasure to hold converse with.

How beneath her, then?

Why, he works with his hands. He is a chauffeur.

He knows every cog and wheel and nut of his machine as a lover of horses knows a horse's points. He can take his car to pieces and put it together again. I went out with him in the slums of a very crowded city once, where the children were almost as thick as cobblestones, and I could think of no other word by which to call the skill with which he guided that machine but genius.

The doctor's eldest daughter made a much better match so they say. She married another doctor. He hasn't much practice, and I don't think he ever will have, because he simply hasn't the ability. He was pushed and tutored through college. I wouldn't have him take care of my sick cat. I can't talk with him a half hour without being desperately bored. His intelligence and his information on general subjects is about one-quarter that of the chauffeur.

But still he is a doctor. He doesn't work with his hands, and therefore he was a satisfactory match. The doctor's wife was quite satisfied with him as a son-in-law.

Wish there were more girls in our town and in the world like the doctor's youngest daughter.

Wish there were fewer women like her mother.

When there are, when all women begin to realize that work done with the hands can be every bit as honorable as work done with the brains, I think one of our economic problems, the overstocking of professional and clerical lines of work, will be on the road to solution.

Don't be ashamed to marry the man who works with his hands, girls. Don't be ashamed of the sweetheart whose work requires that he shall wear old clothes and have dirty hands and maybe even carry a dinner pail.

That's as heartfelt advice as I have ever given you.

Honest labor, whether it is done with brain or brawn never degraded any man or woman, and the world needs the kind of brains that come in finger tips as well as the other kind.

You wouldn't be ashamed to marry a great surgeon, would you? And yet he works with his hands. His brains are in his finger tips.

Now, mind you, I'm not trying to prove that chauffeurs and mechanicians and all sorts of men who work with their hands are always better men and better to marry than the brain workers.

I'm just trying to make you realize that other things being equal, they are just as good, and other things being unequal, they are frequently better.

RUTH CAMERON.

LIFE LINES

A BIT OF PHILOSOPHY IN EPIGRAM

That man is without a friend in any town who says bitter things against his neighbors to gain his own renown.

Piety that feeds altogether on feeling usually shows a saint that is starving for love selfishness never serves.

Character is the abiding part of man, when man falls to practice in the shop or the home what he preaches in the church he proves himself a hypocrite a part of the time.

All things will seem as you wish them to be if you ever strive while you are alive to create into the real your best ideals.

Inspire confidence in your neighbor and you get back what you require, hope shown to another means hope grown in yourself.

He gets back most, who gives out most, he lives best who serves with zest, he sees most happiness, who frees other men from unhappiness.

Count your own blessings and then you will help other people to gather in some blessings to count—happiness in you begets happiness in others.

Life may seem full of sorrow and strife and the days may appear dismal and dreary but these are the negatives of life and will disappear when we join the same filled with good hope.

Did Women Cut Wire Fence and Ruin New Lawn?

William H. Shoup, a contractor living at 1308 East Boulder street, has offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who, he charges, deliberately cut down a wire fence inclosing his property.

Mr Shoup says that after the fence was cut the offenders trampled over a new lawn, practically ruining it. Footprints made by women's shoes are to be found all over the soft earth, but whether there were more than two in the party Mr Shoup is unable to say. The matter is being investigated.

MIDLAND BAND CONCERT, STRATTON PARK TONIGHT

Selections from "Mephistopheles" will be the feature of the concert by the Colorado Midland band this evening at 8 o'clock in Stratton park. The program is as follows:

March "Sebastopol" ... Wheeler
Selection "Mefistofele" ... Boito

Arrigo Boito, born at Padua, 1842. "Mefistofele" or "Mephistopheles," a grand opera in four acts with prologue and epilogue, was first presented at La Scala, Milan, in 1868. Boito had worked a number of years on this opera with the intention of calling it "Faust," but the appearance in Milan of Gounod's "Faust," just before it was finished, forced the composer to change the name to "Mefistofele." Later judgment terms it the most original, noble and stately of all the operas founded on Goethe's poem.

"Dance of the Hours" ... Ponchielli

The fascinating "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's famous opera, "La Gioconda," is the best-known excerpt from this impressive work. It occurs in the third act of the opera, the scene of which is laid in the House of Gold. The program underlying this ballet is an interesting one. The music begins with a tender episode indicating the hours of daybreak. Then the movement becomes more graceful and refined, and the dance of the hours of the day begins. This in turn is followed by the hours of evening and finally there enter the hours of night. The masked dancers representing the hours of the night then enter into combat with the other forces represented for supremacy—all of which is prettily set forth. Finally day is victorious, and the music goes to a close with rushing brilliancy.

"GRAUSTARK" PACKS THEATER—MATINEE TODAY

Theodore Lorch's faith in the pleasing power of George Barr McCutcheon's widely read romance, "Graustark," was well placed indeed. At the opening performance at the Opera House last evening, the theater was packed to the doors and many people were turned away. There remain but four more performances of this exciting tale of love and adventure. There will be a special extra matinee this afternoon when pictures of Cecil Fay, the charming and clever Princess Yetive of "Graustark" will be presented to every lady in the audience. "Graustark" will close with two performances tomorrow.

The story of "Graustark" is so well known that there seems to be little need of retelling it now. Being the first of these popular stories, it immediately sprang into popular favor and has ever since remained one of the most widely read of McCutcheon's novels. The Opera House production is most satisfying to the eye as well as to the ear. Theodore Lorch and Cecil Fay make two charming leads. Miss Cecil Fay as Princess Yetive exactly suits the character physically, and her conception is delightful and capricious.

"The Call of the Circus," that fascinating play of the sawdust ring, will be revied by the Lorch company for two performances Thursday, matinee and night. Seats are now selling for the evening performance. "St. Elmo," by Augusta J. Evans, will be played for the last times in this city Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee. There remain but two more weeks after the present one of the Lorch stay in this city.

MAJESTIC'S NEW SHOW HAS DECIDED HIT

If the Majestic is not crowded all this week it will be simply because there are not enough lovers of high-class, refined vaudeville in the Pikes Peak region to fill it, for the show that Manager Tammen has secured for this week ought to keep any sized house using the S. R. O. sign all the week. From start to finish, the bill is classy, and there is a most delightful variety in the acts.

The opener is the specialty of the Strength Brothers, and it brings applause scores of times. These two men, who perform in street clothes, are marvels of strength, and they perform a dozen feats which are almost incredible. For example, one puts his hand on the top of the other's head and lifts him overhead, feet up, with one arm. This is only one of many equally difficult.

The Williams Brothers, who follow, have a dancing act that is the equal of any ever seen here. They do clog, buck and wing and eccentric dancing, and their difficult steps bring them unusual applause for a dancing act.

The Majesticscope has a fine human interest film, entitled "Ruined by His Son," which portrays the l[illegible] of a fine mansion through gambling and the restitution made by the son.

The singing and dancing of P. Hirschoff's Siberian Troupe brings out some novelties, the costumes, songs, steps and general manner of these people from the frozen north being all novel. The act is highly interesting, and a feature is the singing of "Drummond," in English, by the soprano. They conclude by displaying American flags to the tune of Yankee Doodle.

Westermen and Hopkins have a neat comedy singing and talking act, the former showing cleverness as a blackface impersonator, while Miss Hopkins possesses a neat stage appearance and manner and a good voice. Their jokes are good and well "perpetrated."

Bosworth and Otto, comedy jugglers, close the show with the best thing in this line going. Their juggling feats excel anything ever seen in this city, and the comedian is the genuine article, introducing a number of novelties that keep the house laughing all the time.

Besides this list of attractions, the program of the Majestic concert orchestra, under the leadership of George Heckenberger, deserves special mention.

Performances at 3.00, 7:30 and 9:10 p. m. Admission, 10, 20 and 30 cents. Remember, the Majestic is perfectly ventilated, the seats are delightfully comfortable and the show is always the best vaudeville money can secure.

LYRIC PROGRAM A MOST PLEASING ONE

"HER WINNING WAY."—Anxious to escape the strain of business and seek diversion and recreation, Robert asks his father to give him a vacation for a few days' rest. The father, who is absorbed by his business affairs, one of the old school plodders, reluctantly grants the son's request, and the young man hurries from the office, packs his grip and hustles for the train. On his way he makes the acquaintance of a very charming lady, who is bound for the same place as himself. Arriving at their destination he offers to carry her grip and she accepts his proffered kindness. Loaded down he follows her to the hotel, where he gladly deposits the luggage to escape a complete collapse from exhaustion. He finds his "acquaintance" very winsome and attractive, so infatuated is he that he prolongs his stay from one day to another until his father is obliged to send a clerk after him to bring him back. When the clerk reaches the hotel he finds the son head over heels in love with his "acquaintance" and seems willing to leave his happy home for her. The clerk is introduced to the young woman and he falls to her charms as readily as Robert did. The captivating creature drops the son and takes up with the clerk. The clerk succeeds in getting Robert to go back to the city pretending he will go with him. At the last moment the clerk refuses to go, and hastens back to the adored one. The son returns to business, the father asks him where the clerk is. When he is informed the old man gets furious and immediately despatches another clerk after the first one. The second clerk walks into the same ensnarement as the first, with the same result, the girl gets them all. The boss in despair determines to go himself and see what is doing. He gets a worse "crush" than any of the others, is her devoted slave, calls her "honey bunch" and gets perfectly foolish over her.

He is entertaining the lady with all the delicacies of the season and spending his money with a lavish hand. A gentleman with three or four children now appears upon the scene. The kids shout in chorus, 'O, mama!'" and lovingly gather around the old gentleman's lady friend, very much to his surprise and chagrin.

The son and the clerks, who have returned to the scene of their discomfiture in search of the boss, arrive just in time to see the children clinging to their mother. In concert with the boss they all exclaim "stung" and unceremoniously beat it for the city.

"DAME NATURE'S ART GALLERY."

A good many years ago, before you or I or any of us began to think of Colorado as the playground and show-place of America, the tribes of Ute Indians who wandered where the village of Manitou now stands were attracted to an orifice in the cliffs near the foot of Pikes Peak, from which, at intervals there issued strange sounds. Being at a loss to account for it, the Utes enshrouded it in mystery, and wove their weird legends concerning it. Later the white men came, and unburdened with aboriginal superstitions, they discovered another entrance, entered, investigated, and found that the sighing of the cave was caused by the wind, which whistled through it's peculiar formations. It was then that the "Cave of the Winds" began to attract international attention. Soon geologists and men of science, who visited it and explored its recesses with torches, discovered that, in variety and beauty of formations, the cave was unique in the history of geology. Its entire 16 rooms were an ever-changing panorama of Nature's sculpture in varied materials.

As the years have passed, the cave has grown in reputation, until tens of thousands visit it yearly. Without in any way marring its natural wonders, it has been rendered as easily accessible as a house, and brilliant electric searchlights reach every nook and crevice, bringing into strong relief each glittering crystal formation. The cave is easily reached by carriages up beautiful Williams Canon, and it is open to visitors both day and night.

Have You Ever Said "I don't see how all the Magazines live?"

Undoubtedly you have. You have probably stood aghast before some news-stand and wondered what magazines to buy. There are a lot of magazines. Most of them are mighty good and most of them live because they are good.

But there's one magazine that not only lives but GROWS. There are fifteen or more good reasons for this in every issue. These reasons are its "unbeatable" features the special articles obtained at enormous cost the best fiction in the world and its powerful, sincere editorial purpose. It grows because it is the new type of magazine, which gives news and information as well as entertainment. It fearlessly, daringly goes to the heart of the big questions that affect the business welfare or the private happiness of every American man or woman. It publishes the things live men and women want to know about, the things they ought to know, about their country, their politics, their financiers, their employers. It is the magazine that is giving to the country "Peary's Own Story," a $50,000 feature; it is the magazine that is pu[illegible] the F[illegible] [illegible] in A[illegible] of M. It is actually stuffed with big, vital news—information that you ought to have, articles that explain things, stories that every member of your family will read with intense delight. Prove it to yourself. How many of the following articles and stories in the September HAMPTON'S would you like to read?

"The Tooth Tinkers"

Here is an article, by Roy L. McCardell, [illegible] concerns every man, woman and child in America. It tells how "Painless Parkers" everywhere are extracting good teeth and money from gullible [illegible] all over this country, by promising cheap "painless" dentistry. Most persons prefer painless [illegible] to the other kind. You will know how to look for the right kind after reading Mr. McCardell's amazing and true account of methods now being employed. Mention the article to your own dentist after reading it. He will be very grateful to you.

"Chantecler"

"HAMPTON'S has Chantecler." This announcement has been received with intense interest throughout the United States. Ever since Rostand's immortal play appeared in France, all America has waited for Gertrude Hall's English version. "Chantecler" is the greatest romance of the world's greatest romanticist. STOCK PRICES RISE ON SHORT COVERING

NEW YORK Aug 29.--The ground work for the rise of prices of stocks today was laid last week in the overselling by a group of professional operators prompted by the false alarm of frost in the corn section. Advices over Sunday of favorable weather for corn quieted apprehension and revived confidence

Sales of cotton on the New York cotton exchange for August delivery, at 20 cents a pound were treated as merely a sensational market The crossing of the record price made in the Sully corner and the establishment of a new high record since the Civil war were a demonstration of successful manipulation and skillful maneuvering, with very little bearing on the problem of crop yield or intrinsic value

The rapid movement of grain to market carries with it the corollary of need for currency to effect this movement. The demand on the interior banks at the reserve centers for this purpose is said to be large and is reflected from them on the New York banks Shipments of currency to the interior and to Canada from here continue actively by express, and there were deposits at the subtreasury today for transfer to New Orleans. These forces of depletion of bank reserves may have accounted for a slightly firmer tone of call loans today the rate opening at 1½ per cent and rising to 2 per cent

The tenacity with which three or four of the largest New York banks are holding to excessive surplus reserves in face of the high rates and meager demand for commercial paper is the occasion of some uneasy discussion.

The demand for stocks today seemed to be professional. Of the day's aggregate sales of 337,700 shares, United States Steel, Reading and Union Pacific made 252,300 shares.

Bonds were firm Total sales, par value, $745,000. United States 4s advanced ¼ per cent on call.

WHEAT PRICE FALLS UNDER LIQUIDATION

CHICAGO Aug 29 —Exporters of wheat asserted that foreign bids today were not so good as on Saturday, although every European market Budapest excepted was higher Nearly the entire list of influences bent downward, and the close was at a net loss of ¼c to ⅜c Corn finished ⅛c @⅜c to ⅞c lower than at the end of last week, oats off ⅛c to ⅜c and provisions 2½c down, to 17½c up.

Elevators were good buyers of September wheat as it was being liquidated by miscellaneous longs The purchasers meanwhile sold freely for December Cash inquiry improved a little today but sales to millers were small In contrast with this Chicago wheat stocks increased 750,000 bushels for the week, and are now 5 915,000 bushels. For a while prices were stirred up a bit by a rumor that 800 000 bushels of wheat had been sold from Winnipeg to France but later the story was declared a clumsy fiction. Near the end of the session the selling side received a denial. Fluctuations in the December option had as limits $1 03⅝ and $1.04⅝ with the last sales at $1.04 to $1.04½, a decline of ¼@⅜c compared with Saturday's close

Corn was an extremely slow affair, December ranged from 57⅝c to 58½c, with the close ⅝c to ⅝c net lower at 57⅝c to 57⅞c

In oats December touched 36⅞c and 36⅝c as high and low, respectively, and finished ⅛c down at the last named price

Shorts and packers were fair buyers of provisions today. At the wind up, pork had risen 2½c to 5c; lard, 2½@5c to 12½c, and ribs 2½c to 7½c

COIN SHAFT IS REOPENED

GRANITE COMPANY WILL INCREASE OUTPUT.

Lucky Strike Made by Miner-Politician—New Placer Field Located.

Special to The Gazette

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo Aug 29 — Active operations were resumed this morning through the Gold Coin shaft of the Granite Gold Mining company. The shaft has been retimbered under the personal supervision of Superintendent Dan McCarthy, and the work—the most complete of its kind—is pronounced perfect McCarthy square sets were used, and the shaft has been out of commission but a short time With the Gold Coin workings in operation, the production from the Granite company's estate on Battle mountain will be materially increased Since the Coin shaft was temporarily closed, work has been carried on through the shafts on the Upper Granite, Monument and Dillon claims

New Machinery for the Pride.

A new and more powerful plant of machinery will be installed on the Pride of Cripple Creek mine on Ironclad Hill by the Pride Leasing company, whose stockholders are Colorado Springs business men.

Fred Johnson, the mine superintendent, is already figuring on the required plant, and bids will be asked of the mining machine men when the plans are drawn up The mine is in good ore and heavy production will follow the installation of the new plant

New Shoot on El Paso.

O. Fogleman, the candidate for nomination on the Democratic ticket for sheriff of this county, leasing on blocks 14 and 15 of the El Paso Consolidated Gold Mining company's Beacon Hill estate, has opened up an ore shoot at the third level of the main shaft and with a car or two out the miner-politician will have ample funds for campaign purposes The shoot has been opened up northeast of the main shaft, on what is known as the "middle" vein, lying between the main El Paso and Little May veins The lead is from three to four feet between walls and the quartz exposed carries considerable sylvanite Grab samples, taken from the muck pile back of the machine drills, give returns of better than two ounces gold to the ton, and the trial shipment, now being sorted in the ore house is estimated at this grade

New Placer Field.

A location certificate for 160 acres of placer ground in the Tarryall Mining district of Teller and Park counties, has been filed for record with the county clerk and recorder by G A Coplen, George T Coplen Rosa E. Coplen, Annie M Saunders, Mary Ann Saunders, A B Whitmore and G H. Weed, all residents of this city

The claim is located on the section adjoining the western boundary of Teller and eastern boundary line of Park county, about 12 miles northeast of Lake George in Teller county. The men of the party who returned from that district last week have sampled their test dirt, and it gave results of from 50 to 80 cents per yard

Valuable deposits of topaz and amazon stones have also been located Samples from a vein found on the hill side about one-fourth mile distant from the placer gave results of $32 a ton, and a location stake has been set up on the outcropping of the vein. Men have been put to work on both the placer and lode claim, and it is stated that the necessary work for patent will be rushed forward .

To Exercise Lease Options.

J A McKinnie and associates, who recently secured prospecting permits with lease options on the Nebraska and Nebraska No 2, and the south 1000 feet of the Ivanhoe claim on Gold Hill, will exercise his option and take leases on these properties. The first named claims are owned by L. E Sherman of Colorado Springs and the Ivanhoe by the Greater Gold Belt Gold Mining company, a Colorado Springs corporation The leases will run for a period of three years with graded royalties on the ores marketed
